PREFACE.

It has been no part of my intention in compiling these lists entitled "The Bench and Bar of Philadelphia," to give a history of the organization of the Courts, but merely names of Judges, with dates of their commissions; Lawyers and dates of their admission, and lists of other persons connected with the administration of the Laws in this City and County, and in the Province and Commonwealth. Some necessary information and notes have been added to a few of the lists. And in addition it may not be out of place here to state that Courts of Justice, in what is now the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, were first established by the Swedes, in 1642, at New Gottenburg, now Tinicum, by Governor John Printz, who was instructed to decide all controversies according to the laws, customs and usages of Sweden. What Courts he established and what the modes of procedure therein, can only be conjectured by what subsequently occurred, and by the record of Upland Court. It is said that the English after the conquest of the lands on the Delaware, concluded not to make any violent change in the administration of justice as it then existed under the Dutch rule, following the good example of the Dutch, who, on taking possession of the country in 1664, permitted the Swedish magistrates to remain in office. So we find that there was sitting at Upland (Chester) on August 18, 1672, a Court with titles and powers unknown to the English law, its powers appearing to have been legislative as well as judicial. At what time the seat of justice was removed from New Gottenburg to Upland, is not definitely known. Stuyvesant met the Swedish Magistrates and Sheriff at Tinicum, in 1658, but the records of the Court there, as well as the records of the Upland Court prior to November 14, 1676, are lost. See Upland Record, 43.

Under William Penn, 1681, a new order of things took place, and as Peter McCall, Esq., in his discourse before the Law Academy, on September 5, 1838, p. 7, says:

“The first organization of the Courts was admirable for its simplicity and convenience. The County Court, in the days of Alfred and Egbert, a tribunal ‘of great dignity and splendour,’ was drawn from the obscurity into which it had sunk after the Norman invasion, and was made the ground-work of the edifice. It was composed of the Justices of the Peace of the several counties, with an appeal to the Provincial or Supreme Court. The Provincial Court originally consisted of five Judges. The number afterwards varied from five to three, who went their Circuits every fall and spring in each county. To it belonged the cognizance of the higher criminal offences, and all appeals from the County Courts, both in law and equity. To complete the structure were added the Quarter Sessions and Orphans’ Court, and the Admiralty. Such was the plan of the Judicial system established at the settlement of the Colony; so simple, yet convenient in its arrangements, that though frequent alterations were made in its details by subsequent legislation, the general outline remains to the present day a standing proof of its enduring excellence.”

In addition to the regular County Court, a tribunal was established by Act of March 10, 1683-4, called the Peace-Makers, consisting of three persons, who held their appointment from the Court. Their duties seem to have been somewhat analogous to those of Arbitrators. Their judgment, however, when certified to the Court, was conclusive of its sentence.

The County Courts were early (1685) made Courts of Equity as well as Law, but the Law and Equity sides were distinct, though held by the same Justices, except that when sitting in Equity they were called Commissioners, as will be seen by reference to the minutes of the Courts of Chester County, (all the Records of the Common Pleas of Philadelphia, previous to 1789, are missing.) See Dr. Smith’s History of Delaware Co., 161.

The foot notes to Dallas’ Laws, in the different Acts relative to the organization of the Courts, are interesting in this connection, (see 1 Dallas, 172-74, &c.,) as are also the sketch of the Court of Equity given by Henry William Rawle, Esq., in his discourse before the Law Academy, February 11, 1868, and the address of the Hon. James T. Mitchell, one of the Judges of the late District Court, at its final adjournment on January 4, 1875.

This introduction would hardly be perfect without reference to the former lists of admissions to the Bar, and lists of our lawyers that have appeared in print, viz:

The Members of the Philadelphia Bar. A complete catalogue from July, 1776, to July, 1855, by R. F. Williams, Philadelphia, 1855, pp. 50.

A Catalogue of the Philadelphia Bar, admitted between June 1, 1855, and January 1, 1861; compiled from the records of the several Courts in the City of Philadelphia, by Horace L. Peterson, Esq. Printed by King & Baird, 1861.

A List of Admissions to the Philadelphia Bar from 1855 to 1867, will be found in The Age newspaper of January 1, 1867.

The Philadelphia Bar, a complete catalogue of the Members from 1776 to 1868, by E. Cooper Shapley and David Paul Brown, Jr., Esquires; Philadelphia, 1868, pp. 53.

The offering of the carrier of the Legal Gazette to its patrons, December 25, 1871, being a list of the practising lawyers of the Philadelphia Bar, arranged according to seniority of admission, with the dates thereof, to February 23, 1871; pp. 7.

“List of the practicing Members of the Philadelphia Bar,” with the dates of their admission. Printed by John Campbell & Sons, October 10, 1879; pp. 10.

Directory of the Members of the Philadelphia Bar, being a list of the practising Attorneys, and the location of their offices; a pocket edition, by Richard C. Winship, Esq., 1879; pp. 34; 2nd edition, 1881; pp. 38; 3rd edition, 1883; pp. 48.

The Philadelphia Legal Directory, for the use of the profession, giving a list of the practising Lawyers, with the location of their offices, &c. Compiled by E. C. Markley & Son, 1882; pp. 14.

The Philadelphia Directories, from 1854 to 1868, published each year a list of the practising Lawyers, and similar lists have been continued in “The Philadelphia Business Directory” and in “Boyd’s Business Directory,” since 1868.

Among the many customs imported from England, relative to the members of the legal profession, is the practice of carrying their briefs and papers to Court in what are termed “Lawyer bags.” The profession generally, until after the Civil War of 1861-5, carried green bags, though a few of the older lawyers varied the custom by using those of a blue color, but red bags are a modern innovation, within the last ten years.

In this connection the following article from Jeaffreson’s book about lawyers may not be deemed inappropriate, but a fitting conclusion to the introduction of this work to the profession, wherein I have striven to rescue from oblivion the names of the good men and true who have labored on the Bench and at the Bar of Philadelphia.

“On the stage of the Carolina theatres, the lawyer is found with a green bag in his hand; the same is the case in the literature of Queen Anne’s reign; and until a comparatively recent date, green bags were generally carried in Westminster Hall and in provincial Courts by the great body of legal practitioners. From Wycherley’s ‘Plain Dealer,’ it appears that in the time of Charles II., angry clients were accustomed to revile their lawyers as ‘green-bag carriers.’ When the litigious widow Blackacre upbraids the barrister who declines to argue for her, she exclaims: ‘Impertinent again, and ignorant to me! Gad’s boddikins! You puny upstart in the law, to use me so; you green-bag carrier; you murderer of unfortunate causes, the clerk’s ink is scarce off your fingers.’ In the same drama—making much play with the green bag—Wycherley indicates the widow Blackacre’s quarrelsome disposition by decorating her with an enormous green reticule, and makes her son, the law student, stagger about the stage in a gown and a heavy burden of green bags.

So, also, in the time of Queen Anne, to say that a man intended to carry a green bag, was the same as saying that he meant to adopt the law as a profession.

In Dr. Arbuthnot’s History of John Bull, the prevalence of the phrase is shown by the passage, ‘I am told, cousin Diego, you are one of those that have undertaken to manage me, and that you have said you will carry a green bag yourself, rather than we shall make an end of our law suit. I’ll teach them and you, too, to manage.’ It must, however, be borne in mind that in Queen Anne’s time, green bags, like white bands, were generally adopted by solicitors and attorneys, as by members of the bar. In his ‘character of a pettifogger,’ the author of The London Spy, observes: ‘His learning is commonly as little as his honesty, and his conscience much larger than his green bag.’

Some years have elapsed since green bags altogether disappeared from our courts of law; but the exact date of their disappearance has hitherto escaped the vigilance and research of Colonel Landman, ‘Causidicus,’ and other writers, who in the pages of that useful and very entertaining publication, Notes and Queries, have asked for information on that point and kindred questions. Evidence sets aside the suggestion that the color of the lawyer's bag was changed from green to red, because the proceedings at Queen Caroline's trial rendered green bags odious to the public, and even dangerous to their bearers; for it is matter of certainty that the leaders of the Chancery and Common law bars carried red bags at a time considerably anterior to the inquiry into the Queen's conduct.

In a letter addressed to the editor of Notes and Queries, a writer who signs himself 'Causidicus,' observes: 'When I entered the profession (about fifty years ago) no junior barrister presumed to carry a bag in the Court of Chancery, unless one had been presented to him by a King's counsel, who, when a junior was advancing in practice, took an opportunity of complimenting him on his increase of business and giving him his own bag to carry home his papers. It was then a distinction to carry a bag, and a proof that a junior was rising in his profession. I do not know whether the custom prevailed in other courts.' From this it appears that fifty years since the bag was an honorable distinction at the Chancery bar, giving its bearer some such professional status as that which is conferred by 'silk,' in these days when Queen's counsel are numerous.

The same professional usage seems to have prevailed at the Common Law bar more than eighty years ago; for in 1780, when Edward Law joined the northern circuit and forthwith received a large number of briefs, he was complimented by Wallace on his success and presented with a bag. Lord Campbell asserts that no case had ever before occurred when a junior won the distinction of a bag during the course of his first circuit. There is no record of the date when members of the junior bar received permission to carry bags according to their own pleasure; it is even matter of doubt whether the permission was ever expressly accorded by the leaders of the profession, or whether the old restrictive usage died a gradual and unnoticed death. The present writer, however, is assured that, at the Chancery bar, long after all juniors were allowed to carry bags, etiquette forbade them to adopt bags of the same color as those carried by their leaders. An eminent Queen's counsel, who is a member of that bar, remembers that when he first donned a stuff gown, he, like all Chancery juniors, had a purple bag, whereas the wearers of silk at the same period, without exception, carried red bags.

Before a complete and satisfactory account can be given of the use of bags by lawyers, as badges of honor and marks of distinction, answers must be found for several questions which at present remain open to discussion. So late as Queen Anne's reign, lawyers of the lowest standing, whether advocates or attorneys, were permitted to carry bags—a right which the junior bar appears to have lost when Edward Law joined the northern circuit. At what date between Queen Anne's day and 1780 (the year in which Lord Ellenborough made his debut in the north,) was this change effected?

Was the change gradual or sudden? To what cause was it due? Again, is it possible that Lord Campbell and 'Causidicus' wrote under a misapprehension, when they gave testimony concerning the usages of the bar with regard to bags, at the close of the last and the beginning of the present century? The memory of the distinguished Queen's counsel, to whom allusion is made in the preceding paragraph, is quite clear, that in his student days Chancery juniors were forbidden by etiquette to carry red bags, but were permitted to carry blue bags; and he is strongly of opinion that the restriction to which Lord Campbell and 'Causidicus' drew attention did not apply at any time to blue bags, but only concerned red bags, which, so late as thirty years since, unquestionably were the distinguishing marks of men in leading Chancery practice."

ADDENDA.

James A. Gorman was admitted to the Bar on March 5, 1883, too late to put his name in the list at its proper place.

Hon. George Sharswood delivered the Annual Address before the Law Academy, on the evening of March 13, 1883, on "The History of the Academy."

Gustavus Smith Benson, admitted to the Bar on January 12, 1828, died on March 22, 1883, in the 77th year of his age. He was a broker, and never practised at the Bar.

Ex-Governor Henry Martyn Hoyt, a member of the Bar of Luzerne County, was admitted to practice in the various Courts of Philadelphia, on March 31, 1883, on motion of Ex-Chief-Justice Sharswood. And on the same day the following other gentlemen were also duly admitted: R. Osborn Moon, Julius Ludewig Koethen, Jr., and Henry W. Blakeslee.

ERRATA.

On page 16 it is stated that Dr. Thomas Græme died Sept. 14, 1772, aged about 84 years. Mr. Westcott says he died before May 23, 1758, and the 1772 Græme must have been another.

On page 33 I have stated that the Judges of the Common Pleas, appointed under the Act of Sept. 29, 1759, Duke of York's Laws, pp. 405-7, held the Courts of Quarter Sessions; this is erroneous, they only sat in the Common Pleas and Orphans' Courts. The Justices of the Peace continued to hold the Quarter Sessions, and no Justice in commission could be a Judge of the Common Pleas under the provisions of that Act. See correction in note 2, page 41.

On the same page, in the 14th line from the bottom, March 20, 1761, is given as the date of Alexander Stedman's advancement to the Supreme Court; it should be March 21, 1764. See pp. 16 and 19.

In the list of Philadelphia Directories, on page 153, I neglected to mention that in 1800 there was one issued called "The New Trade Directory," containing a complete list of all the occupations and trades, to which is added an alphabetical list of all the streets, alleys and lanes in the City and Liberties, printed in 1799.

On page 220, it should have been stated that John Sergeant served as Chancellor of the Law Association until his death in 1852.

On page 244, Robert Alsop's death is omitted; he died Aug. 31, 1871, aged 62 years.

On page 230, Charles L. Dubisson ought to be Charles L. Dubuisson, as it is given in the Bar List, p. 264.

I neglected to note that Alexander McKinley, p. 291, was, during the Rebellion, Private Secretary to Admirals Farragut, DuPont and Rogers, of the U. S. Navy.

Horace L. Peterson, p. 301, died at Yokohama, Japan, and was the Private Secretary to the Admiral commanding the Asiatic Squadron of the United States Navy. He entered the service during the Rebellion of 1861-5.

Edward L. Teakle, see page 316, was admitted to the Bar in 1871, not 1831, as printed. His full name is Edward Lambert Teakle.

BENCH AND BAR
OF

THE COURT OF ADMIRALTY.

WILLIAM PENN and his Council exercised the Admiralty Jurisdiction in Pennsylvania and the lower counties, from March 9, 1683, until 1693, after which time the Judges of the Vice Admiralty here were appointed by the Commissioners of the Admiralty in England; of course the commissions were by the Crown under the Great Seal of the High Court of Admiralty. Philadelphia was included in the district composed of the "province of New yorke, Colonyes of East & West Jersey, province of pennsilvania et Countries of New Castle, &c." In the old "Docquets," at Philadelphia, the Court is styled the Court of Vice Admiralty. The first entry is in 1735, and the "Hon. Charles Read, Esq.," is called the "Comissary of the Court of Vice Admiralty of the Province of Pennsilvania," and on the minutes "Sole Judge." The last record in the minute books of that Court is in 1759, and no proceedings are to be found recorded until those before "the Honorable George Ross, Esquire, Judge of the Court of Admiralty, lately instituted in the Province of Pennsylvania, by the General Assembly thereof, pursuant to the recommendation of the Honorable Continental Congress." In 1789, by the Constitution of the United States, the Admiralty jurisdiction was vested in the United States District Court.

The list of the Admiralty Judges, in Colonial times, is not entirely satisfactory to myself. In 1703, Col. Quarry obtained in some manner a commission for Pennsylvania and West Jersey, which rendered Mompesson's office worthless. But this does not appear to have continued long. Logan Papers, 1 vol. 311, says that John Moore was Deputy Judge of the Vice Admiralty for Col. Seymour, Governor of Maryland and Vice Admiral of Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, 5 mo. 20, 1704. These appointments do not seem, however, to have interfered much with Judge Mompesson, who held the office until William Assheton was appointed, and that date I am unable to fix, except by the date on his Book-plate, viz: 1718.

In 1768, Jared Ingersoll, the elder, of Connecticut, was appointed Commissioner of Appeals or Judge of the Court of Vice Admiralty for New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, at a salary of £600 per annum, to be held at Philadelphia, (see 4 Pa. Arc., 600; 2 Proud. 291, and Gordon's Penna., 628, Appendix.) and as he had original jurisdiction in Admiralty matters, it rendered Shippen's office as Judge "of little or no annual value." James Biddle was Deputy Commissary or Judge for Pennsylvania—See 4 Pa. Arc., 600, (1775) wherein Edward Shippen is called "The Judge of the Court of Admiralty of the Province of Pennsylvania." On the Docket, Nov. 14, 1758, he is styled Judge of the Vice Admiralty.

² Mompesson had arrived here at this date; 1 Logan Papers, 200. His commission as Judge of the Vice Admiralty included Massachusetts Bay, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, the Jerseys and Pennsylvania; Street's New York Council of Revision, 75; but Col. Quarry in some way got a commission as Judge of the Admiralty for Pennsylvania and West Jersey.—1 Logan Papers, 281, Nov., 1703. In 1 C. R., 575, Quarry is spoken of as Judge of the Court of Admiralty of Pennsylvania and West Jersey, on May 14, 1700, and Moore as Advocate.

¹ In the history of the First City Troop, it is stated, JAMES MEASE was "Admiralty Surveyor of the Port of Philadelphia, 1796-1825."

The Board of Surveyors in the Admiralty Court at Philadelphia are appointed by the Court; and in 1856 Judge Kane issued a set of rules for the guidance of the Board. A writ is issued to the gentlemen named as "surveyors of damaged goods and vessels" in each case. They are appointed in pursuance of an ancient law and custom of the Court of Vice Admiralty of Pennsylvania, derived from the practice of the High Court of Admiralty in England, of so ancient a date that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. This office is recognized in the Act of Congress of May 8th, 1792, section 10; 1 Statutes 278, but in the Revised Statutes that part about surveyors' affidavits was dropped by the commissioners who revised the Statutes, as they no doubt, were ignorant of the practice of the Admiralty to issue writs to surveyors to examine damaged goods and vessels. An old writ of this nature was issued in 1755. It is as follows:

"Vice Admiralty of Pennsylvania

"Edward Shippen, Jr. Esq., Judge of his Majesty's Court of Vice Admiralty for the Province of Pennsylvania.

"To Joseph Richardson and John Stamper, merchants, Captain William Wassdell and Nehemiah Allen, cooper, all of the city of Philadelphia.

"Whereas, the ship Molly, whereof William Allison is Commander, lately arrived in the Port of Philadelphia from Antigua, and it is said the Cargo on Board the said Ship hath sustained Considerable Damage in her late voyage from Antigua aforesaid, TO THE END, therefore, that Justice may be duly Administered to all persons therein concerned, and that the Damage Sustained may be more truly known and ascertained, THESE are by his Majesty's Authority to will and require you, or any two of you, forthwith diligently to View and Survey the Goods, Wares, and Merchandise on Board the said Ship as the same now are, and Examine the Damage accrued to the same, whether by the insufficiency of the said Ship, through bad Stowage, or any other neglect or mismanagement of the Mariners on Board the said Ship, or otherwise. And you are required to make and return a true report in the premises into the said Office of Vice Admiralty, according to the best of your Skill and Judgment, upon your respective Oaths or Solemn Affirmations, according to Law and Custom.

"Given under the Seal of the said Office of Vice Admiralty at Philadelphia, the tenth day May, in the twenty-eighth year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord, George II., Anno Domini one thousand seven hundred and fifty-five.

"EDWARD SHIPPEN, JR."

² The Continental Congress recommended the several Legislatures of the United Colonies to create Courts of Admiralty.—Journal of Congress, 1 vol. 260. An appeal being allowed to Congress in all cases, or to such person or persons as they should appoint for the trial of appeals. On Sept. 9, 1776, a committee consisting of Richard Stockton, Samuel Huntington, Robert Treat Paine, James Wilson and Thomas Stone were appointed to hear an appeal in the case of the schooner "Thistle." This committee appears never to have met but once, namely, on Sept. 16, 1776, in the State House, to hear the appeal from the decision of Judge Ross.—See Admiralty Docket, Record in Prize, 1776, in which the Committee are denominated Commissioners.

June 1, 1785, Congress, by resolution, discontinued the salaries of the Judges.—See Journal of Congress. On June 27, 1786, they were authorized to grant new trials, &c. The Court expired with the Confederacy.

³ In the place of Horace Binney, who declined Jan'y 31, 1842.

Circuits, they were probably detailed for the occasion by the Supreme Court. Until the appointment of Judge McKennan, the only Judges of the Circuit Courts were the Associate Justices of the U. S. Supreme Court, with the exception of the "Midnight Judges." The Act of April 16, 1869, gives each Circuit a Judge, the Bench of the Circuit Court consists of an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, the Circuit Judge and the Judge of the U. S. District Court for the district in which the Court is held; any two of said Judges sitting together, constitute a full Bench.

² Jared Ingersoll was appointed Chief Judge, Feb. 18, 1801, but declined, and Mr. Tilghman was appointed, nominated and confirmed by the Senate on Mar. 3, 1801. These Judges were facetiously called "The Midnight Judges." Congress, by Act of Feb. 13, 1801, reduced the Supreme Court to five Judges, and they were released from Circuit duty. Six Circuits were formed, each Circuit with three Judges, (except the sixth, which had only one,) a Chief Judge and two associates. Mr. Adams, the retiring President, nominated the Circuit Judges, and they were confirmed, or rather some of them were, just before midnight on the night of March 3, 1801, and their appointments made out at once, hence their nickname. Mr. Jefferson became President the next day, and the Act was repealed at the next session, on April 29, 1802, to take effect July 4, 1802; without the imputation of a fault on the part of the Judges. Horace Binney, in his eulogy on the late Chief Justice Tilghman, Oct. 13, 1827, said: "This particular measure was deemed by wise men on all sides, and still is cited by them, as the happiest organization of the Federal Judiciary." There is a volume of reports of the "Midnight Judges," by the late John Bradford Wallace, called "Wallace's Reports," consisting of about 240 pages. This is the reason why the volumes of reports published subsequently in the same Circuit by the Reporter's son, John William Wallace, are styled "Wallace Junior's Reports."

Thompson Westcott, Esq., the author of the History of Philadelphia, to whom I am more indebted than to any other friend for aid in the compilation of this work, objects to the foregoing account of the "Midnight Judges" as not being strictly correct. He states in the Sunday Dispatch of Oct. 8, 1876, that "John Adams, while President, toward the end of his term, seriously urged a re-organization of the Federal Judiciary. The Circuit Courts were held by the Judges of the Supreme Court; but the business was increased so much that the appointment of additional Judges was considered necessary. On the 13th of Feb., 1801, an Act was passed reducing the number of the Judges of the Supreme Court to five—whenever a vacancy occurred—and released those Judges from all Circuit duty. The number of United States District Courts was increased to twenty three, and the districts were arranged in six circuits, each circuit with three Judges. The result was to create sixteen new Judges, besides attorneys, clerks, marshals, and other officers. As it was near the end of Adams' term, and as Jefferson was elected four days after the Act was passed, it was supposed that the President would allow his successor to make the appointments; but he did nothing of the sort. He sent to the Senate on the 18th the names of Charles Lee of the District of Columbia; Jared Ingersoll of Pennsylvania; Richard Bassett of Delaware; William Griffith of New Jersey; Egbert Benson of New York; Oliver Wolcott of Connecticut; Samuel Hitchcock of Vermont; Philip Barton Key of Maryland; John Davis of Massachusetts; Jacob Read of South Carolina; Elijah Paine of Vermont; Ray Greene of Rhode Island; John Sitgreaves of North Carolina; Joseph

The Supreme Court

OF THE PROVINCE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

This high tribunal was established under the Royal Charter to William Penn, bearing date Mar. 4, 1681, and by order of the Provincial Council of y^e 1st of y^e 2nd mo., 1684, and re-organized from time to time, by different Acts of the Assembly of the Province.

The following sketch, which is as complete as the records at Harrisburg and elsewhere can make it, shows the organization and personnel of the Court at different periods between 1684 and 1776.

It will be observed that William Penn, as early as the 18th of 8th mo., 1685, in his letter to Wm. Markham, "Dept. Govern'r of Pennsylvania," says: "I have sent my Cosin William Crispen, * * and it is my will and pleasure that he be as Chief Justice," Clay of Georgia; William McClurg of Kentucky, and William H. Hill, of North Carolina. Some changes were afterward made. William Tilghman took the place of Ingersoll in Pennsylvania. The Judges of the First circuit in 1802 were John Lowell of Massachusetts; Benjamin Bourne of Rhode Island, and Jeremiah Smith of New Hampshire. In the Fourth district, George K. Taylor and Charles Magill of Virginia sat with Philip Barton Key. In the Fifth district Dominick Hall of North Carolina and Daniel Potter of South Carolina were Judges in 1802. Jefferson took strong grounds against the continuance of this Act, and it was repealed at midnight, March 8, 1802. The Judges were called 'Midnight Judges,' in consequence of a story that their names were agreed upon during the midnight before they were sent to the Senate."

&c., and although Andrew Robeson, in 1693, is the first of the "Prior Judges," (1 Proud, 295; 1 C. R., 86,) that I find called Chief Justice, I have indicated each "Prior Judge," before his time, as Chief Justice.

4th 6 mo., 1684—1 C. R., 47, 66-8, and 1st Proud, 286; Rawle's Equity, 9. Under the Act of 1684, chapter 158, Laws, five Justices were commissioned for two years:—Dr. Nicholas More, C. J., William Welch, William Wood, Robert Turner and John Eckley. William Clarke was appointed in place of William Welch, who died before 10th 7 mo., 1684. He was styled "Justice in General," 1 C. R., 109-10, and appears to have, by virtue of his commission, presided over the County Courts, and, perhaps, succeeded Wm. Welch, who was called the President of the counties of Philadelphia and New Castle, in 1 C. R., 67. My references to the Colonial Records are to the first edition, printed in 1838. The second edition was issued in 1851-52.

1685—Appointed 14th 7 mo., 1685; 1 C. R., 102 and 105-8—James Harrison, C. J., James Claypoole and Arthur Cooke. These Judges, however, declined to serve; 1 Proud, 300, and the Council heard the appeals.

1686—Appointed 31st 1 mo., 1686; 1 C. R., 120, 139 and 141—Arthur Cooke, C. J., William Clarke and John Cann.

1686—Commissioned 20th 7 mo., 1686. Re-commissioned 2nd 2 mo., 1687; 1 C. R., 142, 143 and 152—Arthur Cooke, C. J., John Simcock and James Harrison.

1690—Appointed 2nd 2 mo., 1690; 1 C. R., 283 (1st edition) and 1 C. R., 324 (2d edition)—Arthur Cooke, C. J., William Clarke and Joseph Growden.

1690—Under the Act of 1690, chapter 197, five Judges were appointed and commissioned on the 5th 7 mo., 1690; 1 C. R., 303—Arthur Cooke, C. J., John Simcock, Joseph Growden, Peter Alrichs, and Thomas Wynne; but on account of the "unwillingness of y^e Judges to doe their Dutys in Severall counties," this commission was afterwards revoked, and the Court was re-organized 21st 9 mo., 1690; 1 C. R., 304—John Simcock, C. J., William Clarke, Arthur Cooke, Griffith Jones and Edward Blake, of New Castle. William Clarke, C. J., for the Lower Counties, with the other four as his Associates.

1693—The following Judges were commissioned May 29th, 1693, and in the same year a new law was passed, by which the Court was to consist of one Chief Justice and four associates, and a new commission issued to the same Justices, September 23, 1693. The fifth Justice seems never to have been named; 1 C. R., 352, 383 and 415—Andrew Robeson, C. J., William Salway, John Cann and Edward Blake. Anthony Morris was appointed Aug. 10, 1794, in the place of John Cann, deceased.

1698—On the 3rd of the 8th mo., 1698, the following Justices held a session of the Provincial Court at Chester; Martin's History of Chester, 73—Joseph Growden and Cornelius Empson.

1701—From Mr. Staughton George's notes, and the Records of Commissions at Harrisburg. Commission dated 20th 6 mo., 1701. The Commission directs the Justices to hold a court twice a year at Philadelphia, on the 24th of the 7th mo., and on the 10th of the 2d mo. Two of them to go the circuit of the counties, of whom Guest or Clarke must always be one. In the Logan Papers, 1 vol. 57, it is stated, under date of the 26th of 7 mo., 1701, "Judge Guest is made our Chief Judge upon which Judge Growden would not act as his inferior. Caleb Pusey is in, and what is the wonder of us all, Thomas Masters has, without taking his degree of a Justice, leaped at once to be one of the five Judges"—John Guest, C. J., William Clarke, Joseph Growden (declined,) Edward Shippen, Robert French (declined?) Caleb Pusey and Thomas Masters.

1702—Logan Papers, 1 vol. 193-5, &c.—John Guest, C. J., William Clarke, Edward Shippen, Thomas Masters and Samuel Finney, associates.

1703—2 C. R., 86; Logan Papers, 1 vol. 193-5—William Clarke, C. J., Edward Shippen, Thos. Masters and Samuel Finney. Wm. Clarke was Acting Chief Justice in place of Guest, who declined. Captain Finney also declined.

1704—Commissioned April 10, 1704; See Record of Commissions—William Clarke, C. J., John Guest, Jasper Yeates, Samuel Finney and William Trent, associates. Judge Clarke died about February, 1705.

1705—Martin's History of Chester, p. 74—John Guest, C. J., Joseph Growden, Jasper Yeates, Samuel Finney and William Trent. Chief Justice Guest died 8th 7 mo., 1707.

1706—2 C. R., 248, appointed April 17, 1706—Roger Mompesson, C. J., Joseph Growden, Jasper Yeates, Samuel Finney, and William Trent, associates.

By order of the Queen's Council of February 7, 1705-6, the several laws establishing the Courts of this Province having been repealed, and the Assembly not agreeing on a Bill, John Evans, the Lieut. Governor, by an ordinance and proclamation of Feb. 22, 1706-7, established and restored the usual Courts, &c. See Manuscript Laws of the Province of Pennsylvania, Book A 4, pp. 3-7. The Supreme Court was to have only three Justices; and the Supreme Court of the Province became separated from that of the Lower Counties on the Delaware. A Supreme Court for the trial of NEGROES was created, Book A 4, p. 78, and a commission issued, A 4, pp. 66 and 181. The Supreme Court for the Lower Counties was established with three Justices, A 4, p. 184. I am indebted for much valuable information respecting the Provincial Courts to Mr. Staughton George, of Harrisburg, Pa. Mr. George is one of the editors of the work issued by the State in 1879, known as "The Duke of Yorke's Laws," &c. It brings the Provincial Acts down to 1700; but we have no printed Acts of the Assembly between 1700 and 1714; since when the Annual Session Laws have been printed, and several complete copies are known to exist. See my Bibliographical Sketch of the Laws of Pa., Legal Intelligencer, Oct. 6, 1882.

1707—Names of Justices—commissioned. Joseph Growden, C. J., Nov. 20, 1707; Jasper Yeates, Dec. 2, 1707; Samuel Finney, April 8, 1708.

1711—Under the Act of February 28, 1710-11. Four Justices were commissioned March 16, 1711—Joseph Growden, C. J., Samuel Finney, Richard Hill and Jonathan Dickinson.

1715—Under the Act of May 28, 1715, Book A 2, p. 109, commissions were issued on June 10, 1715, to Joseph Growden, C. J., William Trent, Jonathan Dickinson and George Roche. Robert Assheton was appointed Associate, June 12, 1716, in the place of Captain George Roche, who was absent from the country; 2 C. R., 613.

1717—Commissioned Feb'y 15, 1717. From record of commissions. David Lloyd, C. J., Jasper Yeates, Richard Hill, and William Trent, associates.

1717—Commissioned Sep. 23, 1717. Record of commissions. A change of Governors accounts for two commissions being issued the same year—David Lloyd, C. J., Jasper Yeates, Richard Hill, and Jonathan Dickinson.

1718—Commissioned Feb'y 15, 1718; 3 C. R. 22, 29, 35, 67, 83, 104-5—David Lloyd, C. J., Jasper Yeates, Richard Hill and William Trent. The same Justices were re-commissioned March 26, 1720, and served until the passage of the Act of May 22, 1722, which reduced the number of Justices to three. Justice Yeates died in 1721; 3 C. R., 140.

1722—Commissioned June 2, 1722; see also 3 C. R., 156, 186 and 197. Three Justices, Act of May 22, 1722—David Lloyd, C. J., Richard Hill and Robert Assheton.

1724—Votes of Assembly, 2 vol., 401 and 493—David Lloyd, C. J., Richard Hill, William Trent and Robert Assheton. Assheton was appointed in place of William Trent, who died Dec. 25, 1724, he being at his decease the Chief Justice of New Jersey.

1726—Commissioned Sept. 20, 1726. A new Act was passed

Aug. 27, 1727. Book A 2, p. 352, and the same Justices were re-commissioned Sept. 23, 1727. See also 3 C. R., 272 and 273—David Lloyd, C. J., Richard Hill and Jeremiah Langhorne, in the place of Robert Assheton, who declined. He being the Recorder of the City of Philadelphia, ex-officio Justice of the Peace and the Courts, Clerk of the Peace, and Prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas of the same city and county, objections were made to his sitting in the Supreme Court as one of the Justices. David Lloyd died 6th 2 mo., 1731, aged 78 years, and was buried in Friends' graveyard at Chester. See Martin's History of Chester, p. 82. Richard Hill was a merchant sea captain. He died Sept. 9, 1729, so says 1 Proud's History of Pennsylvania, p. 473, in a note.

1731—Commissioned April 9, 1731, Record Commissions, and 3 C. R., 426, 439 and 640—Isaac Norris, C. J., Jeremiah Langhorne and Dr. Thomas Græme. James Logan, C. J., was commissioned Aug. 20, 1731, in the place of Isaac Norris, who declined the office, and died June 3, 1735.

1733—Commissioned April 9, 1733. Re-commissioned Dec. 28, 1733—James Logan, C. J., Jeremiah Langhorne and Thomas Græme, associates.

1739—Commissioned Aug. 13, 1739; 4 C. R., 348—Jeremiah Langhorne, C. J., Thomas Græme and Thomas Griffiths. Chief Justice Langhorne died in 1743, and Mr. Justice Griffiths resigned the same year.

1743—Commissioned April 5, 1743; 4 C. R., 640—John Kinsey, C. J., Thomas Græme and William Till. Kinsey, C. J., died in 1750. Dr. Thomas Græme died Sept. 14, 1772, aged about 84 years.

1750—Commissioned Sept. 20, 1750—William Allen, C. J., Lawrence Growden and Caleb Cowpland. Mr. Justice Cowpland died at Chester, Pa., on the 12th of the 10 mo., 1757, in the 67th year of his age, and was buried in Friends' grave-yard at that place. For a sketch of the old Judge and his family, see Martin's History of Chester, p. 272-3.

1758—Commissioned April 8, 1758.—William Allen, C. J., Lawrence Growden and William Coleman. By an Act passed Sept. 29, 1759, see "Big" Peter Miller, p. 115; the Justices were to hold office for life or during good behavior, and the above judges were re-commissioned April 8, 1760; and again on March 20, 1761. Lawrence Growden was re-commissioned in 1761, but not sworn into office, at least his oath is not on file with the others in the records at Harrisburg. He died in 1770, aged 76.

1764—Commissioned March 21, 1764—William Allen, C. J., William Coleman and Alexander Stedman. Alexander Stedman, the President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for the City and County of Philadelphia, was commissioned in place of Coleman on March 21, 1764, and not before that date, as I find that he presided in the Orphans' Court on March 10, 1764. On the 20th of May, 1767, an Act was passed increasing the number of Judges of the Supreme Court to four, viz: A Chief Justice and three associates.

1767—Commissioned Sept. 14, 1767, under the Act of May 20, 1767, the bench to consist of four Judges, to be Justices of the Supreme Court, and Justices of the Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery; 9 C. R., 393—William Allen, C. J., William Coleman, John Lawrence and Thomas Willing. In 1768 Mr. Justice Coleman retired from the bench, but the vacancy occasioned by his resignation was not filled until 1774.

1774—The following gentlemen were commissioned April 29, 1774 (10 C. R., 173) Justices of the Supreme Court of the Province, and the same day a new commission was issued, assigning and appointing the same four gentlemen "Justices of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery for this Province"—Benjamin Chew, C. J., John Lawrence, Thomas Willing, and John Morton, of Chester county.

The Justices of the Supreme Court

OF THE PROVINCE OF PENNSYLVANIA,

From 1684 to 1776.

But two lists of the Justices of the Supreme Provincial Court¹ have been published before the one now presented. ¹ The following letter explains itself: "LONDON, 18th 8th mo., 1685.

"Cosen Markham: My sincere love salutes thee, wishing thy prosperity every way. With this comes Instructions & Concessions, with some Company. I hope thou hast made convenient provision for them. I have sent my Cosen, William Crispin, to be thy Assistant, as by Commission will appear. His Skill, Experience, Industry & Integrity are well known to me, & perticularly in court-keeping &c; so that it is my will & pleasure that he be as Chief Justice, to keep the Seal, the Courts & Sessions; & he shall be accountable to me for it. The proffits redounding are to his proper behoof. He will show thee my Instructions, which will guide you all in the business. The rest is left to your discretion; that is, to thee, thy two Assistants & the Council.

"Now I shall tell thee that, if thy Inclinations and others run to a sea-life, I shall put thee in Command of a vessel to carry People & goods betwixt this Country & that; which if thou thus except, come with all the Speed thou canst, that thou mayst be here before I goe, & command a vessel backwards: the proffit is more, & I think the credit not less. But this is left to thee to come or stay till I come theither.

"Pray be very respectfull to my Cosen Crispin. He is a man my father had great confidence in and vallue for. Also strive to give Content to the Planters, and with Meekness and Sweetness, mixt with Authority, carry it so as thou

JUSTICES FOR SUSSEX COUNTY.

William Till;	commissioned	July 25, 1726
Philip Russell,	“	July 25, 1726

² The Justices appointed in 1726, are called in the 3 C. R., p. 268, “Former Judges of the Supreme Court and Commissioners of the Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery.” Grafton, appointed vice Lowman.

OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA.

CHIEF JUSTICES.

Joseph Reed,	declined	Mar. 20, 1777
Thomas McKean, ³	commissioned	July 28, 1777

² See Life of George Read, p. 14, 1754, "John Ross, then Attorney General."

³ Chief Justice McKean was re-commissioned July 29, 1784, and again on July 29, 1791. The following interesting biographical statement is copied from an issue of the Boston Journal of several years ago :

"The fact that Thomas McKean—signer of the Declaration of Independence, Chief Justice of Pennsylvania, and Governor of the State—studied law in London, has hitherto escaped the notice of his biographers, and is, as we are informed, unknown to his descendants. In March, 1877, John Lathrop, Esq., the reporter of decisions of the Supreme Judicial Court of this State, bought, at a sale by auction in this city, a work in two volumes entitled 'The Laws, Ordinances and Institutions of the Admiralty of Great Britain, Civil and Military,' published in London in 1746. In one of the volumes was written the name, 'Tho. McKean, of the Middle Temple.' It occurred to Mr. Lathrop that this might be the signature of the distinguished Thomas McKean, and on comparing it with his signature on the Declaration of Independence, he was satisfied that his conjecture was correct. The signature was then submitted to competent experts in this city, and was by them said to be genuine. The book also had stamped on the cover the name of J. B. McKean. The Chief Justice had a son, Joseph Borden McKean, who was at one time the Attorney-General of Pennsylvania. There could be no doubt that the work had once been owned by the Chief Justice; but, to establish the fact beyond a peradventure that he had studied law in the Middle Temple, Mr. Lathrop caused inquiries to be made in London, and has just received from the treasurer of the Middle Temple a note stating that upon search into the records of the Society, he finds that Mr. Thomas McKean was admitted a member on May 9th, 1758, and was described as the son of William McKean, of the county of Chester, in Pennsylvania. This properly describes Thomas, the signer, Chief Justice and Governor." He died June 24th, 1817, aged 83; having been admitted to the Bar in May, 1755. This admission was to the Bar of Chester county, and is given as his earliest admission to be found, following the advice of Mr. Binney in his strictures on Mr. Williams' Bar-list. Thomas McKean was admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on April 17th, 1758, which must have been just before he sailed for England, if the above statement is correct, which I have no reason to doubt.

Patrick Robinson, ¹	in office	11, 5 mo., 1685
David Lloyd, ²	appointed	2, 8 mo., 1686
Robert Assheton, ³	"	Oct. 25, 1701
Joshua Lawrence,	" in office for divers years past."	before 1730-1

¹The Historical Society of Pennsylvania have the MS. minutes of the County Court of Philadelphia in Patrick Robinson's handwriting. I identify them as of that court by the case of Rambo, 1 C. R., 106. For Pat Robinson's troubles, &c., see 1 C. R., 86, 87, 89, 90, 94, 95, 101, 108, 144 and 145.

There has been much written about ancient brick houses in this city and in Chester, having been built of bricks imported from England, a very unlikely statement; I think the story is disposed of by the following copy of the first mortgage recorded in Philadelphia, viz: "JOSEPH BROWNE to PATRICK ROBINSON, mortgage Dated 10th month, 'December,' 1685, in the first year of the King's reign, between Joseph Browne, of the Town and Countie of Philadelphia for himself in name, and behalf of, and as partner with George Guest of the said Town and Countie, Brickmakers, of the one part & Patrick Robinson, Countie Clark of Philadelphia, of the other part. Witnesseth That the said Joseph Browne for himself &c, &c, in consideration and for Securitie and payment of the sum of Fourtie pounds, due & owing by him the said Joseph Browne &c, &c, hath bargained sold delivered & mortgaged & by these prest's doth &c, &c, to the said Patrick Robinson his heirs and assigns forever One Negro Man named Jack formerlie bought by him from the said Patrick Robinson, as by bill of sale of the Seventh day of the tenth Mo. * * * Provided always, nevertheless, and, on this express provision and condition that if the said Joseph Browne (&c, &c, as above,) his heirs, execr's adminr's & assigns doth well and truly pay to the said Patrick Robinson his heirs &c, &c, the sum of twentie pounds & that in good sound well burned Merchantable Bricks (such as the said Patrick Robinson his heirs and assigns shall lyke of after they come to his or their gate, & after he or they have pickt & chose the same, & rejected the unmerchantable,) att the house of the said Patrick Robinson in Philadelphia, or at any other place within the said Towne to be delivered at the rate of Sixteen Shillings pr thousand, amounting in the whole to Twenty five thousands of Brick, and that att or before the first day of the third Mo. May, 1686. As Also the like sum of twentie pounds and that in Merchantable Corn, beefe, pork and English goods. Being such English goods as the said Patrick Robinson shall have occasion for and to his content at his house in Philadelphia, att the prices then there current, and that att or before the first day of third Mo (May) 1687, without fraud coven or further delay: that then & from thenceforth this present indenture of Sale and Mortgage shal be utterlie extinct and that then also it shall and may be lawfull for the said Joseph Browne his heirs & assigns, the said Negro to have again, retain & repossess as in the former estate anything herein to the contrairie thereof in anywise notwithstanding."

²David Lloyd was commissioned on the 2d of the 8th month, 1686. See 1 C. R., 145, in place of Pat Robinson, dismissed.

³Robert Assheton was appointed Oct. 25, 1701, Town Clerk, Clerk of the Peace and Clerk of the Court or Courts, by William Penn. See City Charter, 2 Proud, Appendix, Part 1, p. 45. On Sept. 15, 1726, he said he had been Clerk and Prothonotary of Philadelphia for about 26 years. He died June 5, 1727. It is very probable that the above appointment by Penn carried with it the Clerkship of the Supreme Court of the Province—at all events he was certainly in office as Clerk of the Supreme Court, June 6, 1709; 2 C. R., 474.

¹ Edward Shippen, Jr., was in office, and signs himself as Prothonotary, Sept. 24, 1765. See 4 Pa. Archives, 243. He was in office before Nov. 1, 1762. 9 C. R., 5.

² By the Act of April 14, 1834, for the purpose of holding the Supreme Court, the Commonwealth was divided into four districts, denominated the Eastern, Western, Northern and Middle Districts, and a Prothonotary or Clerk appointed in each District. I have no records of any other District than the Eastern. By the minutes of the Middle District, Wallace De Witt was the Prothonotary in office May 2, 1864. Robert Snodgrass, appointed May 1, 1871, and William Pearson, January 11, 1882.

⁵ In Futhey & Cope's History of Chester County and 9 Pa. Archives, 631, (2nd series,) the following are given as Attorneys-General of the Province to 1717. “Oct. 25, 1683—John White. Jan. 16, 1685—Samuel Hersent, (commission revoked,) Nov. 17, 1685—John White, (special.) April 24, 1686

William Assheton, 1700, died Sept., 1723, aged 33 years. He was judge of the Vice Admiralty then. He was born about 1690, and it must have been his father, Robert Assheton, who was, if at all, only for a brief period, Attorney-General in 1700. I am afraid that the error as to Wm. Assheton has its origin in my History of Chester, 472, and I can recall no authority for its insertion there. "In the year 1700, James Logan speaks of David Lloyd as the then Attorney General;" 1 Watson's Annals, 521. John Moore was Attorney-General 19 Dec., 1700; 2 C. R., 11.

¹Par Parmyter was Penn's cousin, and appointed before this date, but does not seem to have remained long in the Province, as Moore was again in office in 1703. See Logan Papers, 1 Vol., 38, 66, 113, 196 and 314. See State Papers, 4 Vol., Memoirs of the Historical Society, p. 333.

James Humphreys was a Notary Public, and was made a Justice of the Peace, to accommodate him in that office, which he held for a long series of years; see 10 C. R., 46. On Feb. 8, 1761, five writs of supersedeas were issued to Thomas Yorke, Rowland Evans, John Potts, Samuel Wharton and John Hughes, late Judges of the Common Pleas, forbidding them exercising the powers granted them by Governor Denny; 8 C. R., 575. They were commissioned only as Judges of the Common Pleas, on October 20, 1759; no doubt they held the Quarter Sessions. In the Record of Commissions, Samuel Wharton heads the list, and would therefore appear to be the prior Judge, but I have followed the Colonial Records, as above, and as will appear in the list of the Justices and Judges of the Common Pleas. See also the Orphans' Court Dockets, wherein it is shown that Thomas Yorke and his associates held that Court from Dec. 8, 1759, until they were superseded.

In 8 C. R., 575, will be found the list of gentlemen recommended for Justices to the Governor, on Feb. 28, 1761, which it will be perceived differs from the foregoing in this, Jacob Hall is omitted, and William Parr substituted.

R.*, 47.

The County Courts

OF THE COUNTY OF PHILADELPHIA.

Under the Royal Charter to William Penn there were established in the Province of Pennsylvania three separate County Courts, viz: The Common Pleas, Quarter Sessions of the Peace, (2 C. R., 243), and the Orphans' Court, to be held by the Justices of the Peace; and a Supreme Provincial Court to hear appeals from the County Courts. Special Courts of Oyer and Terminer were held by Judges specially commissioned from time to time, (1 C. R., 111, 112, 114, &c..) one or more Judges of the Supreme Court being generally included in the commission. Finally the Judges of the Supreme Court were commissioned always as the Justices of the Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery, (9 C. R., 393). And the Governor and Council sat as a Court of Equity in all matters. In addition to the regular County Court a tribunal was established called the "PEACE MAKERS," consisting of three persons, who were appointed by the Justices, and whose duties were something similar to those of arbitrators at the present day. Or, to use the language of Penn, they were appointed "to prevent law-suits, to act in the nature of arbitrators, to hear and to end differences between man and man." And a Supreme Court of Oyer and Terminer for the Trial of Negroes was also formed. — Book A, 4, p. 78, &c.

The first Grand Jury summoned in the county of Philadelphia is thus announced in 1 C. R., 31, on the 25th of the 8th month, 1683: "A Grand Inquest were Impanneld and Attested, whose names are as followed: Tho: Lloyd, foreman, Enoch Flower, Rich. Wood, Jno. Hardin, Jno. Hill, Edw'd Louff, Ja: Boyden, Nich: Walne, Jno: James, Jno: Vanborson, Robt. Hall, Valt. Hollingsworth, Alexer. Draper, Jno: Louff, Jno: Wale, Samll. Darke, Jno: Parsons, Jno: Blunstone, Tho: ffitchwate, Wm. Guest, Jno. Curtis, Robt. Lucas, Hen: Jones, Caleb Pusy." And the next day they found a true bill against Charles Pickering for a "Heinous and Greivous Crime," (counterfeiting), and the following Petty Jury were sworn to try him: "John Claypoole, foreman, Robt. Turner, Robt. Euer, Andrew Bankson, Jno: Barnes, Jos. ffisher, Dennis Rochford, Wm: Howell, Walt'r King, Benj: Whitehead, Tho: Rouse, David Brintnell." John White, Attorney-General.

Under the Charter of Wm. Penn to Philadelphia, in 1701, the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen were "Justices of the Peace and Justices of the Oyer and Terminer," this was the City Court: The Recorder presided. Four to be a quorum, whereof the Mayor and Recorder were two. The City Magistrates, under the charter, also sat in the Common Pleas.

In 1701, an Act passed providing for the appointment of Judges of the Common Pleas with Equity powers, and Justices were commissioned for the same. Out of this Act arose the dispute whether the Governor should or should not be Chancellor. In 1710 an Act was passed "for establishing Courts of Judicature," in which Equity powers were not vested in the Governor, but a Court of Equity was to be held by the Judges of the Common Pleas. And again on May 28, 1715, Acts were passed for establishing a Supreme Court in Law and Equity, Courts of Common Pleas and of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace. These Acts were, however, repealed by the English Privy Council.

Previously, on March 27, 1713, an Orphans' Court was formed, to be held by the Judges of the Quarter Sessions; 2 C. R., 591.

Sir William Keith became Governor in 1717, and in 1719 the Acts of 1715 were repealed. Keith established in 1720 a Court of Chancery, which was abolished in 1735.

By the Act of May 22, 1722, a Supreme Court was established, with a Chief Justice and two Associates, with power to hear appeals from the Common Pleas, Quarter Sessions and the City Court, and a Supreme Court of General Sessions of Oyer and Terminer, and County Courts of Common Pleas, with a competent number of persons as Justices, duly commissioned to hold the Courts, three constituting a quorum.

On the 20th of May, 1767, the number of Justices of the Supreme Court was increased to four, a Chief Justice and three Associates.

On January 28, 1777, an Act was passed directing that one Justice in each county should be appointed to preside in the respective Courts of Common Pleas, General Quarter Sessions, and Orphans' Court. But this office had existed from the foundation of Penn's government, for we find in 1 C. R., p. 18, that an attested copy of the Laws should be transmitted "to y^e Presid't or Clark of each County Court," and on the 24th of the 6th month, 1684, the Council "Ordered that the next Justice in Commission to the Presd't of the Court of New Castle, doe officiate in the same till further order." The cause of that order was, without doubt, the death of William Welch, who was, I have no hesitation in stating, the President of the Court at New Castle and at Philadelphia also, for in 1 C. R., p. 67 (1st ed.), on the 11th of y^e 7th month, 1684, "It being proposed by a Memb'r in Council, that a New Commission of the Peace be granted for the Countys of Philadelphia & New Castle, by reason of y^e removeall and Decease of y^e say^d Presid't, it was Unanimously agreed that New Commissions should be Issued out."

The following precept, directed to the Sheriff of Philadelphia, ordering the holding of, what I believe, was the first Court held in this city, is in these words, copied from the original, viz :

“ To ye high Sherif of ye County of Philadelphia :

“ Nicholas More, Esq., & President of y^e Free Socyety & Court of Justices;

“ Thomas Ferman, Esq., and one of y^e Justices of y^e Peace;

“ Laurence Cock, Esq., & one of y^e Justices of y^e Peace;—

“ Three Justices of y^e King shall keep y^e Peace in y^e County of Philadelphia, and they that are appointed shall hear & terminate divers felonies, transgressions & other wicked deeds being Committed in y^e County aforesaid, vizt : wee do Command through all y^e parts of y^e same County aforesaid, and in y^e authority of y^e King, that thou mayest go thorow it and Cause to Come before us or our companions y^e Justices of y^e Peace in Philadelphia, y^e Eleventh day of y^e Eleventh month, alias January, att y^e Blew Anker, at 10 of the Clock, such twenty-foure honest and lawfull men of y^e County, and twenty-foure Milites et al., probos et legales homines de Corpore Com., and other honest and lawfull men of y^e body of y^e County, whosoever they be, and that have possessions and be ffree Indwellers, to enquire yⁿ and in y^e place concerning these things w^{ch} shall be Comended y^m of y^e King aforesaid; also y^u must cause all Crowners of y^e County, marshalls, Constables, and other officers of y^e County, to know it that they are then, att that time to know and to fill up those things w^{ch} they must do by reason of their offices. Moreouer, thou must cause to be proclaimed in all y^e County and Priuiledge places, and in fitt places, that ye sessions of y^e peace shall be held att y^e day & place beforesaid, and thou thyselve must be there to know and perform those things w^{ch} belong to thy office; and thou must have so many names of witnesses, Crowners, Marshalls, Constables, &c., as is required by precept.

“ Dated under our seales y^e 2nd January, 1682-3.

On each seal is an impression of the individual coat-of-arms of the Justice sealing and signing the writ. On that of Nicholas More a shield of four quarterings; the first and fourth, four bars (barry); second and third, a lion rampant, crowned; crest, a ducal coronet; the shield surrounded by olive branches. On that of Thomas Fairman a shield having a chevron, with two squirrels above and one below it. On that of Lasse Cock a pelican on her nest, in a circle, feeding her young with blood from her breast.

On September 1, 1791, the Courts were reorganized with a President Judge, learned in the law, and not less than three nor more than four associates laymen, for each county. See Act 13 April, 1791.

It therefore appears that the Justices of the Peace, who were commissioned as Justices of the Courts, held the County Courts, that is to say, the Court of Common Pleas, the Quarter Sessions of the Peace, and the Orphans' Court, until 1791. There appears to have always been a Presiding Justice, probably the oldest Justice, by the commission, and I have given the name of the first or prior Justice on each Commission, as the Presiding Justice. The same person being, in many cases, for a long series of years, the first on each Commission issued, shows that my conclusion is no doubt correct, especially as precedence of place in regard to the standing of each Justice, on the successive commissions, seems to have been, as a rule, strictly observed.

In 1 C. R., 66. It was "Ordered that the next Justice in Commission to the Presd't of the Court of New Castle, doe officiate in the same till further order." This order was no doubt made in consequence of the illness of William Welch, the Presiding Justice of that Court, whose death was announced at the next meeting of Council.

As early as Sept. 22, 1676, in the Ordinance introducing the Duke of York's Laws, establishing Courts of Justice on the Delaware river, it is said: "3. That the said Courts consist of Justices of the Peace, whereof three make a quorum," &c., "in which the oldest Justice to preside, unless otherwise agreed among themselves."—7 Penna. Archives, pp. 783, 784 (2d series.) And this was, no doubt, the rule until the passage of the Act of Jan. 28, 1777.

On Nov. 12, 1677, a Court was held at Upland, now Chester, by "John Moll, President of the New Castle Court, with the Justices of Upland Court."—Smith's History of Delaware County, 111. See also Upland Record, 92.

In the minutes of the Court of Chester County, of Nov. 30, 1681, William Markham is styled "Governor and President," and on June 13, 1682, William Clayton is called "President." John Simcock, "President," Feb. 14, 1682-3, and Christopher Taylor, "President," in 1684.—Martin's History of Chester, 462.

Peter McCall, Esq., says, in a note to p. 27, of his Discourse, on Sept. 5, 1838, before the Law Academy of Philadelphia: "Isaac Norris presided for a long time in the Quarter Sessions and Common Pleas, and was a member of Council for upwards of 30 years." And in Perry's Papers relating to the History of the Church in Pennsylvania, pp. 264 and 270, William Moore is called the "President Judge of the Courts of Common Pleas of Chester County, on February 5, 1758."

The Aldermen of the City of Philadelphia, sat in the "City Court" as Associate Judges, the Recorder presiding, and those of the Aldermen who were commissioned as Justices of the Peace and of the Courts, assisted the other Justices or Judges in the Common Pleas, Quarter Sessions and Orphans' Court. The Mayor of the City and the Recorder were always included in the Commissioners of the Peace, as were also all members of the Supreme Executive Council, but the latter did not sit in the Courts as a general rule.

Special Courts and Judges to hold the same, were often created by the Provincial Council. This seemed to have always been the case in regard to the Courts for the Tryal of Negroes and of Oyer and Terminer, over which the Chief Justice was almost always named to preside. Each Governor or Deputy Governor of the Province issued a new commission for Justices. The rule was to do so every year; but it seems not to have been strictly observed. On one occasion (in 1693) the Commission to the Justices of the Common Pleas was to sit three days and no longer: 1 C. R., 356.

I give below a list of the Justices who held the County Courts of Philadelphia, until Sept. 1, 1791, and to avoid useless repetition of names, give only the name of each Justice once, and the date of the year when first commissioned, although many were re-appointed several times, and some served through a long series of years. For the term of service, see the Record of Commissions heretofore given. It appears that four Justices were a quorum. See 2 C. R., p. 4. In the old Dockets of the Orphans' Court, I noticed that there were always four Justices present at every sitting of the Court, never any less, seldom any more.

² By the Act of Sept. 29, 1759, the Justices of the Quarter Sessions were not to be Judges of the Common Pleas or of the Orphans’ Court; therefore Thomas Yorke and his associates never sat in the Quarter Sessions; for this reason his name is omitted in this list.

³ Septimus Robinson died January 7, 1767.

⁴ Westcott in his History of Philadelphia, Sunday Dispatch of May 2, 1875, states inter alia, that “Samuel Ashmead died in 1798. * * He was President of the Justices of the Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions in 1774.” See Aitken’s Register, which gives him as President of the C. P. and Q. S., at that date. This is an error as to the Quarter Sessions, for an old Docket, just discovered (1879), of that Court for 1773 to 1779, gives as President, or first Justice, Isaac Jones, Sept. 6, 1773; Samuel Mifflin, Dec 6, 1773; and places Mifflin’s name on a separate line, by itself, until June 4, 1776, after which there are no entries in the Docket, until the following, viz: “At a General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, held at Philadelphia for the County of Philadelphia, on the First day of September, Anno Domini 1777, (being the first Session of the Peace held for the County aforesaid since the United Colonies of North America were by their Representatives in Congress assembled declared Free and Independent States, which was done at Philadelphia on the Fourth day of July, 1776, when the former Constitution and Government of the Province of Pennsylvania were abolished, and soon afterwards a New (to wit, the present) Constitution, Laws and Police for the good Government of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania were formed and established).” And we find in said Docket, “James Young, Esquire, President,” Sept. 1, 1777; John Ord, Esquire, President, March 1, 1779; John Moore, Esquire, President, Sept. 6, 1779; John Ord, Esquire, President, Sept. 4, 1780.

The Constitution of 1790 abolished the County Courts, to take effect September 1, 1791.

The Court of Common Pleas,

FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY OF PHILADELPHIA.

The first sitting of this Court for the County of Philadelphia, is said to have been on Oct. 24, 1683, which is probably correct. The first mention I find made of Judges of the Court of Common Pleas and Orphans' Court, is in the Act of Assembly of Sept. 29, 1759. See "Big" Peter Miller's edition of the Laws of Pennsylvania, from 1700 to 1759, printed in 1762, 2 vol., 116. The Act is entitled "A Supplement to an Act for establishing Courts of Judicature in this Province," and provides "that five persons of the best discretion, capacity, judgment and integrity," maybe, and no more, appointed and commissioned to hold the County Court of Record, styled and called "The Court of Common Pleas," in each county; any three to hold a court; and by the 2nd section they are authorized to hold the Orphans' Court. Justices of the Quarter Sessions not to be Judges of the Common Pleas. The Judges of the Court of Common Pleas and Orphans' Court in Philadelphia, appointed under this Act, were Thomas Yorke, Rowland Evans, John Potts, Samuel Wharton and John Hughes. The Act was repealed by the Privy Council, Sept. 2, 1760, and on Feb. 28, 1761, (8 C. R.), 575, writs of supersedeas were issued to the above named Judges, forbidding them exercising the powers granted under their commissions from Governor Denny.

By the repeal of the Act of Sept. 29, 1759, the Justices of the Peace, commissioned as Justices of the County Courts, held the Common Pleas, Quarter Sessions and Orphans' Court until Sept. 1, 1791. The Act does not mention the presiding Justices, and

I have not been able to find any law conferring that dignity previous to the passage of the Act of Jan. 28, 1777, but as I have before stated in this work, I believe there has always been a presiding Justice, being the Prior Justice on each commission.

By the Act of April 13, 1791, in order to render effectual the provisions of the Constitution of 1790, establishing Courts of Common Pleas, the State was divided into five Districts, the City and County of Philadelphia, Bucks, Montgomery and Delaware constituting the first District, and a President Judge learned in the law was to be appointed for each district, and not fewer than three, nor more than four other persons, appointed in each county as Judges, which said Presidents and Judges were empowered to execute the powers, jurisdictions, and authorities of Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, Justices of the Courts of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery, Judges of the Orphans' Courts and of the Registers' Court and Justices of the Courts of Quarter Sessions of the Peace agreeably to the laws and Constitution. I have attempted, in vain, to obtain an account and description of the forms and ceremonies observed previous to the Revolution, in opening the terms of our courts, which was done in the most formal manner, and with forms and ceremonies unknown to the present race of lawyers. The portraits of Chief Justice Logan represent him in wig, band and gown; no doubt that before 1776, the courts observed all the forms then in force in England, and the Judges wore the costume prescribed therein.

I give here a copy of the precipe to the Sheriff for holding the Oyer and Terminer for October Term, 1853; the form is an old one and no doubt came into use under the Constitution of 1790. It was altered from an older printed writ of 1840.

“THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA,

To the Sheriff of Philadelphia County.

GREETING:—We command you that you cause to come before the Honorable Oswald Thompson, President of our Court of Common Pleas of the first Judicial District of the said Commonwealth, consisting of the City and County of Philadelphia, and by virtue of his office Justice of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery in and for the said City and County, Joseph Allison and William D. Kelley, Esqs., Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Philadelphia, and by virtue of their offices Justices of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery for the County of Philadelphia, assigned, commissioned, and appointed to hear, try, and determine all, and all manner of indictments and presentments made and taken for and concerning Treason, Murder and such other Crimes, as by the laws of said Commonwealth are made capital or felonies of Death, and all other crimes, injuries and offences, whatever, which are or shall be committed, perpetrated, or have happened within the said City and County of Philadelphia, of all persons who are or shall be hereafter committed for the crimes aforesaid, or any two of the said Justices, at the County Court-House in the City of Philadelphia, in the County of Philadelphia, on Monday, the third day of October, 1853, next ensuing, all those prisoners in the Gaol of the said County of Philadelphia, being by you kept in custody, together with their attachments, presentments, inquisitions, re-attachments, and all other miniments in any way concerning the said premises, and all other adminicles in any manner touching the delivery of the Gaol aforesaid being and remaining in your hands and power. And that you cause to come before the said Justices, or any two of them, at the day and place aforesaid, TWENTY-FOUR honest and lawful men of your Bailiwick, by whom the truth of the matter may be better known and inquired of, and who have no affinity, alliance, or kindred to the said prisoners, together with a number of the chief men of your Bailiwick, whom you shall cause to come before the said Justices as aforesaid, on the third day of October, 1853, at the place aforesaid, Sixty in number, to serve as Petit Jurors for not less than three weeks, and Sixty more on the twenty-fourth day of October (1853) next ensuing, to serve until the end of the term of said court, to do those things which on behalf of the said Commonwealth shall be then and there enjoined upon them publicly. Also cause to be proclaimed throughout your Bailiwick, that all they who will prosecute against those prisoners, be then and there to prosecute against them, as shall be just. Give notice also to all Justices of the Peace, Aldermen, Coroner and Constables within your Bailiwick, and to the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen of the City of Philadelphia, and the Mayor and Aldermen of the Incorporated Districts of the Northern Liberties, Spring Garden and Kensington, that they be then and there in their proper persons, with their rolls, records and inquisitions, and examinations, and all other remembrances, to do those things which to their offices in that behalf appertain to be done. And as you yourself, your under Sheriffs, together with your Bailiffs and other ministers, to be then and there in your proper persons to do those things which to you and their offices appertain to be done. And have then and there the names, surnames and additions, and places of abode of said Jurors, and the names of the Aldermen and Justices of the Peace of the County of Philadelphia aforesaid, and the names of the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen of the said city, and the names of the Mayor and Aldermen of the Incorporated Districts of the Northern Liberties, Spring Garden and Kensington, and the Coroner of the said County of Philadelphia, and of the Constables of the said City and County of Philadelphia, and of those you shall so cause to come, and by whom you shall so cause to be made known this precept. Dated at Philadelphia this twenty-fourth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three.

“ PHILADELPHIA, Ss. { THESE are by the King's authority in the Proprietor's name to re-
[SEAL] { quire thee to ATTACH Francis Jones, Merch't, by all his goods and chattels in thy Bailwick, so that hee may be and appear at the next Court to be held of James Stanfield, Merch't, as well to stand to and abide the Judgment of the said Court, and make returns hereof to said Court. Given under my hand and Seal the 20th Day of the 3rd Month, 1698.

ANTHO. MORRIS.

To the Sheriff of the County of Philadelphia, or his Lawful Deputy.

² Isaac Norris died June 3, 1735, and Clement Plumsted became the Presiding Justice. See Record of Commissions, 1733.

² Ashmead succeeded Jones at this date in the Common Pleas. See Record of Commissions at Harrisburg, wherein he and the other Justices are referred to as "Samuel Ashmead and Associates of the Common Pleas." In Aitken's Register of 1774, Samuel Ashmead is given as the "President" of the Justices of the Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions. Isaac Jones appears to have died or resigned after Sept. 6, 1773, and if there is an error in the endorsement or note to the Record of Commissions even, Ashmead became President of the Board of Justices of the Common Pleas at Jones' retirement, as the Register shows. We have seen heretofore, that on Dec. 6, 1773, Samuel Mifflin became "President of the Justices of the Quarter Sessions," as appears by the Docket of that Court, wherein it will also be seen that Ashmead sits next to him in rank among the Justices. In the Independent Gazetteer of March 29, 1794, will be found a biographical notice of the death of Samuel Ashmead, who died March 19, 1794, "aged above 84 years, long respectable as a magistrate, and lately a Representative in the Legislature for Philadelphia County." He "died in the Northern Liberties, and was interred on the 21st in the Baptist burial place."

⁴ Died April 1802, aged 50 years.

⁵ Edward King died May 8, 1873, in his 80th year. He was a powerful, heavy built man, of a robust constitution. He was the great Judge of the Common Pleas. I have been told that much dissatisfaction was openly expressed by many members of the Bar at his elevation to the Bench, but that the great abilities he soon displayed astonished his friends and confounded his enemies.

⁶ Oswald Thompson died Jan. 23, 1866, from overwork. He was an accomplished scholar, an able and a conscientious Judge, and a kind-hearted, courteous gentleman.

The Courts of Common Pleas,

UNDER THE CONSTITUTION OF 1873.

By the Constitution of 1873 it was provided that on and after the first Monday of January, 1875, the then existing Court of Common Pleas and District Court, should be abolished, and all their powers and jurisdiction should be vested in four new Courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, to be composed of three Judges each, and to be called the Courts of Common Pleas, No. 1, No. 2, No. 3 and No. 4, respectively. By the Schedule to the Constitution, the Judges of the District Court and the old Common Pleas, then in commission, were transferred to the new Courts, and provision made for the election of two additional new Judges, to complete the requisite number.

¹ Robert Assheton said, Sept. 15, 1726, that he had been for about 26 years Clerk and Prothonotary of Philadelphia. He died June 5, 1727, having been appointed Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace and Clerk of the Court, or Courts, by the City Charter of Oct. 25, 1701.

² Andrew Hamilton died in 1741. James Hamilton was still in office Jan. 30, 1775. In the year 1760, Samuel Wharton was his Deputy. In 1770-1 James Biddle was his Deputy. See 4 Pa. Archives, 600.

³ Jonathan Bayard Smith, died June 16, 1812, aged 70 years; born Feb. 21, 1742. He was a son of Samuel Smith, of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, and removed to Philadelphia before the Revolutionary War. Samuel Smith, his father, had three sons, Thomas, Jonathan and William. Thomas married a sister of the late Judge Richard Peters. Jonathan married Susannah, daughter of Col. Peter Bayard, of Maryland. After his marriage he introduced the name of Bayard as one of his christian names. William was the father of the late Samuel F. Smith, President of the Philadelphia Bank. So says Richard H. Bayard, May 7, 1858.

⁴ By the Constitution of 1873, the Prothonotary is appointed by the Judges of the Court; salary, $10,000 per annum. The only Clerks of the C. P. that I can now recall, are Christian Frederick Erichson, in 1858, and for several years afterwards. Thomas O. Webb, Chief Clerk of the Common Pleas, under his father, in 1856, and until his death in 1868. George T. Deiss, who succeeded him in that position, and was continued until the re-organization of the Courts in 1875, when he was made Court Clerk of the C. P., No. 1, which position he still fills. The present Court Clerk of Court No. 2, is Thomas B. Reeves; of No. 3, James Penn MacCain; and of No. 4, Charles H. White. The affable manners of these gentlemen render them great favorites with the Bar.

The Court of Equity.

Formed by Proclamation Aug. 10, 1720.

Abolished by Resolution of 27, 11 mo., 1735-6.

The History of the Court of Chancery in Pennsylvania, is rather curious. The Assembly has nearly always been violently opposed to the formation of a Court with exclusive Equity powers. In the earliest days of the Province, after it came under the jurisdiction of Penn, he and his Council exercised Chancery powers in cases brought before them. Thus our earliest Courts began to exercise a blended jurisdiction in Equity as well as Law, and to all intents and purposes exercised the authority of Chancery Courts.¹ The subject became an important one very early, because the Governors under the Proprietaries claimed the powers of Chancellors, and the entire period of our Colonial history is marked by frequent disputes on questions of prerogative between the Governors and the Assembly.

Sir William Keith, who was Governor from 1717 to 1726, obtained from the Assembly an Act establishing a Court of Equity, the Governors being the Chancellors. This was our first and only "Court of Chancery" in Pennsylvania. It existed fifteen years, and was abolished in 1736. As our Courts possess Equity powers, there is now no need for a Court with exclusive Equity jurisdiction. Mr. William Henry Rawle's lecture on "Equity in Pennsylvania," published with a copy of the Register's Docket, fully elucidates the subject, and gives a history of Keith's Court of Chancery.

The Proclamation

ESTABLISHING THE COURT OF EQUITY.

"By Sir William Keith, Esq'r, Governør of the Province of Pensilvania & Counties of New Castle, Kent & Sussex upon Delaware.

"A PROCLAMATION.—Whereas complaints have been made That Courts of Chancery or Equity are absolutely necessary in the administration of Justice, for mitigating in many Cases the Rigour of y^e Laws, whose Judgments are tied down to fixed and unalterable Rules and for Opening a way to the Right and Equity of a Cause for which the Law cannot in all cases make a Sufficient Provision. ¹"The first court under the name of a Court of Equity for Chester County, was held this year (1686). It was held by the Justices of the Common Pleas, under the title of Commissioners, as will be seen by the following extract from the Record: ATT A COURT OF EQUITY held att Chester the 5th day of the 1st week of the 10th month, 1686. Commissioners present: John Blunstone, John Simcocke, George Maris, Bartholomew Coppock, Samuel Levis, Robert Wade, Robert Pile. Robert Eyre, clerk. Only two cases were tried." See Smith's History of Delaware County, 160-61.

From which Date the said Court will be and remain always Open for y^e Relief of y^e Subject to hear and Determine all such matters arising within the Province afores'd as are regularly Connizable before any Court of Chancery According to y^e Laws and Constitution of that part of Great Britain called England and his Majesties Judges of his Supream Court as well as y^e Justices of y^e Inferior Courts and all others whom it may concern are required to take notice hereof and govern themselves Accordingly.

The only act he performed that I know of, in regard to the court, was as Governor on Sept. 1, 1739, in accepting the resignation of Robert Charles as the “Registrar,” and directing him to “deliver up all the books, papers and writings in his custody to Thomas Lawrie, the Secretary, to be by him kept till further orders.” Upon the question of the power of the Assembly to abolish the Court, see the Shippen Papers, 1-6.

Orphans' Court for the City and County of Philadelphia,

IN THE PROVINCE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

By the Act of March 27, 1713, establishing the Orphans' Court, the Presiding Justices of this Court were those of the Quarter Sessions, as the same Justices were to hold both Courts. Previous to this the Court was held by the Justices of the County Courts, Orphans' Courts having been constituted by the Act of 1683 to "sitt twice every year." But as the Dockets of the Orphans' Court are complete from April 9, 1719, to this date, I have thought it proper to give the Presiding Justices from the records, so far only as they show them. There is nothing, however, in the Minutes to indicate who was the Presiding Justice. That knowledge I have derived from the long service of certain Justices at the head of the list of Justices present at the sittings of the Court, and from the Record of Commissions, &c. Previous to Isaac Norris, in 1727, the records do not indicate a President; no particular Justice heads the list; Robert Assheton generally presided. Docket No. 1 opens "the 9th April, 1719," with the following Justices present: Jonathan Dickinson, Robert Assheton and Clement Plumsted. After Sept. 23, 1727, the Justices whose names I give below presided nearly all the time of their term of service, and it will be perceived that in most cases they were the prior or oldest Justices in the commission.

¹ Wm. Bradford was commissioned an Associate Justice of the S. C., Aug. 20, 1791, in the place of Bryan. Atlee was commissioned President Judge of the 2d District, Aug. 17, 1791, to take effect on Sept. 1. See the Act of April 13, 1791. James Biddle became P. J. 1st District, Sept. 1, 1791. Jacob Rush, P. J., 3rd.; James Riddle of the 4th; Alexander Addison of the 5th, and John Joseph Henry of the 2nd, in Nov., 1793, in the place of Atlee, who died on Sept. 9th of that year. Thomas Smith was appointed an Associate Justice in the place of Bradford, promoted to Attorney General of the United States. Hugh Henry Brackenridge was appointed an Associate Justice vice Shippen made Chief Justice in the place of McKean, elected Governor Dec. 18, 1799. John D. Coxe, P. J. of the 1st District in the place of Biddle, and William Tilghman, P. J. 1st District in the place of Coxe. No "persons of known legal abilities" were appointed to fill two, out of three, additional positions mentioned in the Act.

Jacob Duché, who is given on March 19, 1764, was not President of the Board of Justices by seniority, but presided until Dec. 8th. He was one of the most attentive Justices of the Court, and presided very often at the sittings during his long term of service. He was a merchant, and the father of the Rev. Mr. Duché, of Revolutionary fame.

Isaac Jones presided almost continuously from June 27, 1768, until Sept. 6, 1773. He never sat after that date, although I have a citation issued by the O. C., on Sept. 14, 1773: "Witness Isaac Jones, Esquire." * * "By the Court. Ja's Humphreys, Clerk," showing, I think, that Jones was the President or Presiding Justice at that time. The seal of the Court to the paper is the Arms of William Penn, surrounded by the words, "Orphans' Court, City & County Phila."

Samuel Mifflin presided after Sept. 13, 1773; he was, we know, the President of the Quarter Sessions, from Dec. 6, 1773 to 1776. Sometimes, however, Samuel Ashmead sat in the O. C. with him and presided, and at other times Mifflin presided with Ashmead as an Associate. Ashmead was the older Justice by commission, and when Plumsted died in 1765, Ashmead succeeded him in the O. C., although Septimus Robinson was next to Plumsted, but Robinson never sat in this Court after March 21, 1757. He died previous to Jan. 16, 1767. See Will Book O, 156. His will is dated Jan. 4, 1767. From Aug. 14, 1765 to Sept. 6, 1766, Mr. Duché generally presided; after that Ashmead presided nearly always till June 13, 1768. I discovered a singular error in the Wills Index. William Plumsted is entered there as having died in 1769, but in Will Book O, p. 335, his will is proved as of Aug. 20, 1765.

I noticed that whenever the Mayor of the city was present he always presided, his name heading the list of Justices. On all other occasions the order of seniority of Justices was rigidly observed, erasures being even made in the Minutes to correct errors in this respect, and I expect that in the few instances where the Justices were not entered in proper order, it is an error on the part of the Clerk.

The records show conclusively that out of each commission a certain number of Justices were assigned to each County Court.

To make this evident I give a carefully prepared list of all the Justices who have sat in the Orphans' Court, from 1719 to 1791, extracted from the Dockets, and, therefore, absolutely correct. The date of the first sitting only given.

On Sept. 23, 1791, James Biddle, Jonathan Bayard Smith, Enoch Edwards and William Robinson, Jr., Esquires, Judges, held the Orphans' Court. This is the first time the term Judges is used in the Dockets of this Court (see Docket No. 16), although Thomas Yorke and his Associates were commissioned as Judges of the Common Pleas, and Orphans' Court. They are called Justices in the Minutes of the O. C. The Judges of the Common Pleas held the Orphans' Court from 1791 to 1875.

The Orphans' Court.

AS ESTABLISHED BY THE CONSTITUTION OF 1873.

The delays and expense attending the settlement of estates of decedents, led the framers of the new Constitution of Dec. 16, 1873, to authorize the formation of Orphans' Courts, as separate tribunals. See Article V, Section 22. In Philadelphia the O. C. was established by the Act of May 19, 1874, and organized Jan. 4, 1875. The O. C. always had separate organization as to Clerks and Records; but until 1874, never had an independent Judiciary. The O. C. Bench now consists of three Judges, learned in the law. At first the Judges were of equal rank, and presided by turns, but the Act of May 24, 1878, created the office of President Judge.

⁶ The Minute Books of the O. C. from 1829 to 1832, are marked J. L. W., perhaps John L. Woolf; but it is said he was only the Deputy. In the official lists in the Directory of 1830 and 1831, Joseph Andrews is given as the Clerk of the Orphans' Court, which is an error, it should be Robert. In the Court offices the active man is always the Chief Deputy; the actual Prothonotary, Clerk, Register, &c., are seldom known or seen by the Bar. In the Orphans' Court office, for a long series of years, from 1858 to 1868, Richard M. Batturs, a genial gentleman, of Philadelphia, was Chief Clerk; since his retirement, Alfred J. Fortin has been the efficient Deputy. He entered the office first in 1857.

⁴ In Smull's Legislative Hand-Book, 1878, it is set forth that John Moore was commissioned Jan. 1, 1693. By Will Book B it does not so appear, but he was in office May 7, 1700. Col. Wm. Markham was commissioned by Penn, March 29, 1703, by an order directed to Lieut. Gov. Andrew Hamilton; 2 C. R., 96; also Book A, 25th 7 mo., 1703, and complained to the Council (2 C. R., 122, 123 and 124) that Moore refused to surrender the office to him, saying that it was "his property and freehold, and conceived it to be a point of law," and demanded a trial thereof, which was granted. Markham and Moore acted jointly while contesting the matter. Markham died 12th mo. 4th, 1704, and Lieut Governor Evans appointed himself the Register-General, thus settling the matter, and taking possession of one of the most lucrative offices in the Province, and made his cousin, Peter Evans, his Deputy; 2 Logan Papers, 8.

The Mayor's Court,

OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA.

This Court was created by Act of Assembly of March 11, 1789, incorporating the City of Philadelphia, and abolished by the Act of March 19, 1838.

By this Act, the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, or any four of them, whereof the Mayor or Recorder was always to be one, were constituted a Court to be called "the Mayor's Court of the City of Philadelphia," to hear and determine all charges of larcenies, forgeries, perjuries, assaults and batteries, riots, rows, unlawful assemblies, and all other offences usually cognizable in any Court of Quarter Sessions. This Court met quarterly on the first Monday of March, June, September and December, in each year, and held frequent sessions.

The Act of 1789 also established the "Aldermen's Court," to consist of three Aldermen, two to be a quorum. Those to hold the Court to be designated, at least, four times a year by the Mayor or Recorder, to try all matters usually cognizable by Justices of the Peace, where the debt or demand amounted to forty shillings, and did not exceed ten pounds. The Justices of the Court were paid by fees. This Court was abolished by Act of Assembly of March 20, 1810. I copy from the Independent Gazetteer, of April 18, 1789, the following in reference thereto: "At a meeting of the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, held the 15th inst., the Mayor and Recorder nominated and appointed Francis Hopkinson, Joseph Swift and Hilary Baker, Esqrs., to constitute and hold 'The Aldermen's Court.'"

The Mayor and Aldermen had power personally to hear and determine cases of debt under forty shillings.

The District Court,

FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY OF PHILADELPHIA.

Organized by Act of Assembly of March 30, 1811.

Abolished by the Constitution of 1873.

In the early part of the present century Philadelphia was the largest city in the Union, and its commerce, manufactures and general business had kept pace with its population. It began to be seriously felt that the judicial system was inadequate, and accordingly, by an Act approved March 30, 1811, it was enacted: "Whereas, the Court of Common Pleas of the City and County of Philadelphia, from the various objects of its jurisdiction and the great increase and accumulation of business, is incompetent to the speedy and effectual administration of justice to the citizens of that district, for remedy whereof, be it enacted," etc., that there shall be established a Court of Record by the name and style of the District Court for the City and County of Philadelphia, to consist of a President and two assistant Judges, any two of whom, in case of the absence or inability of the other, shall have power to try, hear, and determine all civil pleas and actions where the sum in controversy should exceed one hundred dollars.

The Court thus established soon became full of important business, and acquired a solid and enduring reputation as a great law court for the trial of civil issues. It was the first, and for many years the only Court of original jurisdiction in the Commonwealth whose Judges were all learned in the law. Down to about the beginning of this century, there was no positive requirement that even the Presidents of the Common Pleas should be learned in the law, though the practice had been uniform since the Revolution to appoint only lawyers. But the Associates remained laymen in the Common Pleas of Philadelphia until 1833, when one of them was required to be learned in the law, and "one to be appointed under the existing laws of the Commonwealth," (Act of Feb. 8, 1833; P. L., 23), and the other Associate remained a layman until 1836, after which all the Judges of that Court were required to be learned in the law. (Act of March 11, 1836; P. L., 76.) So late as 1831 the salaries of the Associate Judges of the Common Pleas of Philadelphia were only four hundred dollars each, while the salaries of the Judges of the District Court and the President of the Common Pleas were two thousand dollars each.

The Bench of the District Court was occupied by a succession of learned and able lawyers, and when the Court adjourned sine die, Jan. 4, 1875, it was with the universal regret of the Bar. A more dignified, learned, and impartial tribunal has seldom, if ever, existed in this or any other community.

Joseph Hemphill was a native of Chester, now Delaware county, admitted to the Chester County Bar, August, 1793. Member of Congress, 1801 to 1803, from Chester county, and from 1819 to 1831. He died May 29, 1842, aged 72 years. Associate Judge Sommer's name is sometimes rendered Somers. Simmons and Sommer were not lawyers. Judge Sommer died in February, 1857, aged 69 years, and Anthony Simmons, late Judge, and Colonel of the 96th Regiment, died Jan. 6, 1830, aged 57 years. Edward King had the position of Associate Judge offered to him in 1825; he hesitated about accepting it, and then Judge Hallowell took it; thus making room in the Common Pleas for King as the President Judge. The Forum, 2 vol., 175. On April 1, 1835, King was tendered the place of Presiding Judge of the District Court, but declined. George M. Stroud was Associate for 34 years, and declined the position of Presiding Judge in 1868, when Sharswood was elected Judge of the Supreme Court, and died in 1875, full of years and honors. Thomas McKean Pettit was appointed in the place of Hallowell, who resigned, and was re-commissioned March 30, 1835, for 10 years. Joel Jones was re-commissioned March 31, 1845, for 10 years. Judge Hare was commissioned President Judge December 1, 1867, and elected November 6, 1868. Thomas Greenbank had certificate of election and took his seat, but it was successfully contested by M. Russell Thayer. Judge Briggs was appointed March 25, 1872, and elected October 8, 1872, for 10 years. In accordance with the amended Constitution of 1873, the District Court was consolidated with the Court of Common Pleas, and the Act of May 14, 1874, abolished all Courts not mentioned in the Constitution. P. L., 1874, pp. 139, 140.

An interesting sketch of the District Court will be found in "An Address delivered at the final adjournment of the Court, Jan. 4, 1875," by the Hon. James T. Mitchell, one of the Judges of the Court, in which he says: "By the Constitution of Pennsylvania, adopted in 1873, a new organization of the judicial tribunals of the State was directed, under which the Nisi Prius, District and Common Pleas Courts of Philadelphia City and County ceased to exist on the first Monday in January, 1875. The Judges of the Supreme Court heretofore in turn holding the Court of Nisi Prius, were relieved from original jurisdiction, and the Judges of the District and Common Pleas Courts were transferred to the new Courts of Common Pleas, created by the Constitution."

FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY OF PHILADELPHIA.

This Court was organized in accordance with the Act of March 19, 1838, and commenced its sessions on the first Monday in April, 1838, with a President Judge and two Associates, learned in the law, all ex-officio Justices of the Peace, and to have all the powers and exclusive jurisdiction exercised by the Mayor's Court and the Recorder's Court of the Northern Liberties, Kensington and Spring Garden. The Clerk of the Quarter Sessions of the Peace to be Clerk of the Court. “All the necessary records of the Mayor's Court, Recorder's Court, and of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the County of Philadelphia, shall be delivered to the Clerk of the Sessions Court.”—Laws of Penna., 1838, section 18, p. 125. Abolished by Act of 27th February, 1840.

¹ Mr. Selby served until the Court was abolished, and then became by the Constitution of 1873, Prothonotary of the Common Pleas. The Bar seldom came in contact with the Prothonotaries. Their duties were performed by Deputies. The Seniors of the Bar have a vivid recollection of Matthias Coates, who was Chief Clerk previous to 1840, for many years. He was a character in his way, and made all the lawyers “stand from under” when he was in a bad humor. He was much liked, however. John L. Woolf was Deputy for Mr. Dale, and afterwards principal Deputy for Sheriff Lelar. Edwin T. Chase, succeeded Woolf as Chief Clerk, and held that office for a long time. The Bar will recall with pleasure Frederick A. Trego, James G. Gibson, Search-Clerk for many years, and afterwards Prothonotary of the Common Pleas; David A. Allison, who succeeded him as Search-Clerk, and continued in that position for a long period, and Benjamin M. Shain, who was for a long series of years a clerk; Henry T. Coleman, a former Appearance-Clerk, from 1845 to 1848; Horace L. Peterson, in the same position, and Pierre Chapouty, Chief Clerk, and also Robert E. Hackett, for many years one of the Clerks, who died Jan. 8, 1882, aged 72 years, all pleasant and obliging gentlemen.

Interpreter

FOR THE COURT OF QUARTER SESSIONS.

Appointed by the Judges, term five years.

Joseph Sanson,³ appointed Feb. 8, 1869

Joseph P. Galton, Chief Court Clerk of the Quarter Sessions, died on Jan. 22, 1879, aged 39 years. He entered the office of the Clerk of the Q. S. in 1857, when quite young, as an assistant to J. Orlando Tobias, the then Chief Court Clerk, and succeeded him in that position in 1860. His death was announced in Judge Mitchell's Court by District Attorney Hagert, on the afternoon of the day of his death. He said, "It becomes my painful duty to announce to your Honor the decease of Joseph P. Galton, who was connected with this Court for a period of twenty-one years, and who was for more than eighteen years its Court Clerk. In the course of this long experience Mr. Galton had acquired a thorough knowledge of the business and practice of the Court, and was frequently consulted by the Judges in matters arising in the progress of its daily business. Indeed, so thoroughly informed was he upon such matters, that although comparatively young in years, he filled the full measure of the old law writer's description of the aged and faithful clerk, who was described as the 'right hand of the Court.' Ever faithful and attentive to his duties, courteous and obliging to all with whom he was brought into contact, his loss will be sensibly felt by the Court and the Bar. I deem it due to the memory of this efficient and faithful officer to bear this public testimony to his worth and ability, and as a mark of esteem in which he was held by the Judges, I move, your Honor, that a Minute of his death be entered on the Records of the Court."

Judge Mitchell in a few feeling remarks eulogistic of the deceased, said that he acquiesced in what Mr. Hagert had said, and ordered a Minute of the proceedings to be entered on the Records.

² Vice Truman, deceased.

³ In the edition of Purdon's Digest, by Brightly, 1853, it is said, in a note to an Act providing for the appointment of an Interpreter in Alleghany county, that the several sworn Interpreters of foreign languages in the City and County of Philadelphia shall be entitled to receive the same fees as the Alleghany County Interpreter for attendance on Courts. This Act was passed April 14, 1838. In a note the compiler says that the only Act authorizing the appointment of an Interpreter in Philadelphia was the General Health Law of Jan. 29, 1818, which gave him fees for his visits to vessels. On the 27th of March, 1865, a law was passed authorizing the appointment of an Interpreter in Philadelphia by the Governor; and one, for the Court, by the Judges of the Common Pleas. See Com. ex. rel. Girard vs. Sanson, 67 Pa. State Reports, 322.

The death of Mr. Galton was also announced in the old court room by Assistant District Attorney Reed; and Judge Yerkes, after making an appropriate reply, ordered that the Court be adjourned in respect to the memory of the deceased. These were exceptional honors to one occupying so subordinate a position; but the moral is evident, “Honor and fame from no condition rise;

Act well your part, there all the honor lies.”

Prosecuting Attorneys for Philadelphia.

This list is very unsatisfactory, but it is the best I could compile from the Reports and the memory of the older members of the Bar, and is, therefore, necessarily incomplete in many particulars. Attorney-General Lear wrote me in 1878, that there were no lists of the Deputies on file in the Attorney-General's office. The Prosecuting Attorneys were—

District Attorneys of Philadelphia.

Previous to 1850 the prosecuting law officer for the Commonwealth in the different counties of the State, was appointed by the Attorney-General, and called the Deputy Attorney-General. By the Act of May 3, 1850, P. L., 654, the qualified voters of every county in the State were authorized to elect one person learned in the law, as District Attorney, for three years from the first Monday in November next after his election. By Article 14, of the new Constitution, District Attorneys are declared to be county officers, and their terms begin on the first Monday in January next after their election, to represent the Commonwealth in all criminal and other prosecutions. Since that time the following gentlemen have acted as District Attorneys for the judicial district, known as the City and County of Philadelphia.

¹The Act of April 27, 1857, which was passed with the intention of compromising the contest between Mr. Mann and Mr. Cassidy, provided that there should be two District Attorneys, the Judges of the Quarter Sessions to appoint the additional District Attorney, but the Presiding Judge of the Court and his Associates refused to recognize the Act as a compromise, and the contest went on and was decided in favor of Mr. Mann. The Court then appointed Mr. Loughhead the additional District Attorney.

²District Attorney Mann was in service for over four months, in 1861, as Colonel of the 31st Pennsylvania Volunteers, during which time Mr. O'Brien was his Deputy. He was the assistant of Mr. Reed during the latter's term. Mr. Mann's son, Charles Naylor, was his assistant after his admission to the Bar in 1862. The late Judge Thomas Bradford Dwight and William H. Ruddiman, were also Mr. Mann's assistants.

³Mr. Sheppard had certificate of election, and was sworn in. Mr. Gibbons contested his election, and the Court declared him elected, Oct. 25, 1869; afterwards the Court discovered they had made an error in counting the votes, so on May 3, 1870, reversed their former decision and declared Mr. Sheppard duly elected. His assistants during the time he held office were, Henry S. Hagert, Robert P. Dechert, and William Wilson Ker.

Mr. Hagert's assistants were, John R. Reed, Dallas Sanders, and William Wilson Ker, now an assistant to the Att'y-Gen. of the United States.

⁴District Attorney George S. Graham made the following appointments: First Assistant.—Francis Amedée Bregy. Second Assistant.—Charles Franklin Warwick. Third Assistant.—John Lippincott Kinsey. Clerk.—James Murray Rūsh Jermon. Mr. Bregy was Assistant under Col. Mann.

² The reason why it is impossible to obtain a list of the Solicitors of Southwark is, because no such list was ever made out by any person. The Minute-books of the Corporation of Southwark, as well as of all other districts, were ordered to be placed in charge of City Councils after Consolidation. This direction was but partially enforced. Many of the books were carried off by individuals. I saw, some years ago, a Minute-book of the Corporation of Southwark in the possession of a gentleman of this city, who claimed it to be his private property. It is said that for some years after Consolidation, a large number of books belonging to the District Corporations, with other papers, were stored over the Mayor's office at Fifth and Chestnut streets; but I have not been able to verify this statement.

ASSOCIATES.

The Aldermen of the Districts.

I have had no opportunity of examining the Records of the Districts; in fact, I believe they have all been destroyed, hence these imperfect lists. There were no City Directories printed in 1836 or 1838, and that of 1837 contains no lists of the Aldermen, except those of the City proper. Being unable to find out the names of the gentlemen who sat as Associates, application was made to the author of the History of Philadelphia for any information he had on the subject. He replied as follows:

“By an Act passed in 1832, seven Aldermen were to be appointed for the District of the Northern Liberties. John T. Goodman, Nathan Harper, John Laws, John R. Walker, Frederick Wolbert, Peter Hay and John Conrad were appointed in 1833. Some one of these must have died, resigned or declined, because Mordecai Y. Bryant was appointed April 17th, 1833, in the place of somebody; John M. Cannon was appointed April 15th, 1834; and Michael Andress April 16th, 1836. The three latter were probably in commission at the time the Recorder's Court was created; but we do not know which four of the seven first above named were in service at that time. The Spring Garden Aldermen, by Act of 1832, were four in number. There were appointed in 1833: Morton McMichael, Charles Souder, John L. Woolf and Freeman Scott. June 20th, 1836, Martin W. Alexander was appointed. We presume that he was the successor of Charles Souder, who died, June 2, 1836. By Act of 1832 four Aldermen were to be appointed for the District of Kensington, and in 1834 the number was increased to five. In 1833 the four Aldermen were: Hugh Clark, Isaac Boileau, Robert Hodgson and David Snyder. William B. Mott was appointed December 7th, 1835. On December 9th, 1836, Samuel Weyant replaced one of the foregoing, but we do not know who.” Frederick Wolbert, an Alderman of the Northern Liberties, died June 19, 1836.

¹ During the occupation of Philadelphia by the British, Samuel Shoemaker was continued the first Magistrate of Police, by the King's authority. He died Oct. 10, 1800, aged 76 years. See Poulson's Advertiser, Oct. 11, 1800. The author of the History of Philadelphia replied to a query, "How was the city governed during the Revolution, from 1776 to 1789?" in the Sunday Dispatch of Oct. 15, 1882, that, "The last election for Mayor under the Proprietary Charter, was on the 3d day of October, 1775, and there had been no meeting for six months previously. There was no meeting afterward until the 17th of February, 1776, and that was the last upon the Minutes. Why the City Charter was considered to be superseded by the events of the Revolution, is a political rather than a legal question. By the events of the Revolution the people claimed to have succeeded to every right which the Proprietaries had under the royal Charter, and which the Assembly and every local government had. It was an accepted fact, after the 4th of July, 1776, that the old government was overthrown. The Convention of the State of Pennsylvania, in 1776, appointed a large number of Justices of the Peace for the City and County, among whom were Benjamin Franklin, John Dickinson and George Bryan. They were required, before assuming their duties, to take an oath of allegiance to the State of Pennsylvania, and renunciation of the authority of George III. Under the Constitution of 1776, Justices were elected, two for each ward, &c., and they were commissioned March 28th, 1777, for the city, and for the city and county June 6th, of the same year. After that Justices were appointed and elected for the city up to the time of the second City Charter. No Aldermen were appointed within that period. During the interval the municipal government was suspended. The affairs of the city seemed to have been carried on by Councils of Safety, Wardens and Street Commissioners—officers having authority under old Acts of Assembly. The Wardens had control of lighting the streets, and the Commissioners of paving them and keeping the highways in repair. We presume that there were no watchmen during the Revolution, except the military guards. This whole subject is worthy of special study by some one who has a legal education and plenty of time for investigation. An exceedingly interesting paper in reference to the interregnum in municipal, as well as in State affairs, could be written. In regard to offences triable in the City Court, as there was no such tribunal during the Revolution, all cases of crime had to be tried in the Quarter Sessions for the County of Philadelphia—because in law, or at least by general consent, there was no City of Philadelphia in existence."

¹ By the Act of April 4, 1796, the Councils were to elect the Mayor on the third Tuesday in October. The Act of April 10, 1826, repealed the 5th section of the Act of April 4, 1796, requiring the Mayor to be elected from among the Aldermen, and authorized Councils to elect any citizen, and the Act of June 21, 1839, gave the people the right to elect the Mayor, Councils to elect where no candidate received a majority; in 1839 Swift was elected by Councils.

² Died July 12, 1851, aged 53 years.

The High Sheriffs,

OF PHILADELPHIA.

By the Frame of Government, of April 25, 1682, 1 C. R., xxvii., the freemen of the counties were to elect annually, on April 23d, "a double number of persons to serve for Sheriffs, Justices of the Peace and Coroners, for the year next ensuing, out of which respective elections and presentments, the Governor, or his Deputy, shall nominate and commissionate the proper number for each office the third day after the said presentments; or else the first-named in such presentment for each office shall stand and serve for that office the year ensuing." No Sheriff could continue in office more than three successive years, or be capable of being again elected during four years afterwards. By the Constitution, Sept. 4, 1790, Article 6, Section 1, the people were to elect two persons, the Governor to appoint one of them. See also Act of Sept. 29, 1789. No person to be chosen twice in any six years. The same law applies to Coroners, and should the Sheriff die, the Coroner of the proper county shall execute his office. They shall hold their offices for three years, and until a successor shall be duly qualified. The amended Constitution of 1838 says, in regard to Sheriffs and Coroners: One person shall be chosen for each office, who shall be commissioned by the Governor. Vacancies to be filled by an appointment, to be made by the Governor, until the next general election, and until a successor shall be duly qualified. The Coroner to execute the duties of the office until another Sheriff shall be duly commissioned. No person shall be chosen or appointed twice in any term of six years.

Masters of Rolls

AND THE RECORDER OF DEEDS.

The office of Master of Rolls was created by the 20th Section of the laws agreed on in England, on the 5th day of the 3d month, (May 7), 1682, viz: "And to prevent frauds and vexatious suits within said Province, that all Charters, gifts, grants and conveyances of land (except leases for a year or under), and all Bills, bonds and specialties above £5, and not under three months, made in said Province, shall be enrolled or registered in the Public Enrollment office of the said Province within the space of two months next after the making thereof, else to be void in law. And all Deeds, Grants and Conveyances of land (except as aforesaid), within the said Province and made out of the said Province, shall be enrolled or registered as aforesaid, within six months after making thereof and settling and constituting an Enrollment Office or Registry within said Province, else to be void in law against all persons whatsoever." See Frame of Laws, 1 C. R., pp. xxvii., xxviii., Sections 17 and 18.

The Master of Rolls was the keeper of the "Publique Records for the County of Philadelphia and for the Entiring of all Judgments of County, publique Proceedings of Justice, Legal Cases and all other Instruments w^{ch} are by Law to be inrolled and Recorded:" 1 C. R., 214. The office of Recorder of Deeds of Philadelphia was created by Act of May 28, 1715, and was separated from that of the Master of Rolls by Act of Assembly of March 14, 1777. Read's Digest, 341; Dallas' Laws, 1 Vol., 731. The second section names the Recorders of Deeds for each county. The Council appointed the Master of Rolls; the Assembly the Recorder of Deeds. The Act of March 29, 1809, abolished the office of Master of Rolls. A portion of the Roll Books are in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the rest in the office of the Secretary of Internal Affairs of this State. In McCaraher v. The Commonwealth, 5 W. & S., p. 26, it is said by Judge Sergeant, in delivering the opinion of the Supreme Court, that the office of Recorder of Deeds, "although unknown to the common law, has been coeval with our Province and State; being part of the laws agreed upon in England between William Penn and the first purchasers in 1682, and reduced after various efforts to a regular system by the Act of 1715, which continues to be the foundation of our code on the subject, and this office may be said to form the pivot on which all our titles to real estate turn. The design of it has been to furnish a permanent record of all titles and muniments of real estate, and many of personal, to which parties may have recourse for exemplifications that have the same force and efficacy as the originals. But there is another equally, if not more important design, which is to enable all persons to obtain knowledge of the state of titles to real estate by deeds and conveyances, and also of charges and encumbrances existing on them by way of mortgage."

The list of Masters of Rolls, printed in IX. Pa. Archives, 628, (2nd series), is very imperfect and incorrect, for it is a matter of history, that Charles Brockden was made Recorder of Deeds of the County of Philadelphia, by the Act of May 28, 1715, and at the same time appointed Master of Rolls, and that he held those offices for over 52 years, and until his retirement, in 1767, so that Andrew Hamilton, Thomas Hopkinson, William Allen, Tench Francis, and Benjamin Chew, never were the Masters of Rolls, nor did Andrew Allen ever hold such a position. On page 629

¹ Resumed the office, 5th 7th mo., which he claimed was his for life.

² Archives, 125. Perhaps a Deputy only.

³ A Clerk and Deputy (in 1712), under Mr. Story, and on his retirement was appointed and commissioned Master of the Rolls, and was in office over 52 years. Resigned, 1767, and died Oct. 20, 1769, aged 95 years and 6 months.

⁴ Timothy Matlack, died April 15, 1829, aged 99 years.

of the same work, Arthur Cook is given as the first Chief Justice of the Province, from 1681 to 1684. As the Supreme Provincial Court was created, by order of Council of y^e 1st of y^e 2^d mo., 1864, and as the Charter to William Penn was not signed until March 4, 1681, the statement is unaccountable, and a serious error in an official publication. The first Chief Justice was Dr. Nicholas More, (not Moore), and C. J. Robeson's name was not Robson, as given. The Register-General of Wills in 1712 is called Hayne, it should be Mayne, the name of a distinguished Irish family. There are many other errors in the lists given, but they are not as important as those here corrected.

THE MANUAL OF COUNCILS, a very valuable little work, now issued annually, by Councils, containing the Rules of Government of the Select and Common Councils, and other interesting and necessary information, together with the names of the Members of the Councils and their officers, and the names of the Heads of the other City Departments, and of all persons employed in each, was first issued in 1859. The Manuals for the years 1859-60 and 1860-61, of which I have copies, were compiled by George W. Gamble. George F. Gordon, assistant Clerk of the Common Council, who was appointed Chief Clerk thereof in 1861, by resolution, during the absence of General William Francis Small, as Colonel of the 26th regiment of Pennsylvania volunteers, compiled the Manual for 1862-63. By Ordinance of February 5, 1863, the Clerks of the Councils were authorized to compile a Manual, and in accordance therewith, the Manual of 1863 was prepared by Philip H. Lutts, the then Chief Clerk, which was used until 1866. The Manuals from 1866 to 1873, were issued annually, and compiled by John Eckstein, Chief Clerk, and from 1874 to 1879, by Joseph H. Paist, Chief Clerk of the Select Council, who says the Manual was not issued regularly prior to 1866, which agrees with the statement of Mr. Lutts.

CHIEF INSPECTOR.

Sylvester H. Martin, commissioned July 6, 1874

The Quarantine Station,

PHILADELPHIA.

The series of buildings on Tinicum Island, from which a large yellow flag, displaying the letter "Q" in the centre, is floating from a flag-pole on the river front, from the first day of June to the first day of October, in each year, is the Quarantine Station for the Port of Philadelphia, and is generally known as the Lazaretto, and occupies one of the handsomest sites on the Pennsylvania shore of the river Delaware; it was there that Governor Printz fixed in 1643 the seat of government and called it New Gottenburg; there the principal persons among the Swedes took up their residence, and there, undoubtedly, the first Courts of Justice were regularly established in what is now the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. See Martin's History of Chester, pp. 308, 461.

A quarantine law first passed in 1700, when Pennsylvania was a colony. It was limited to foreign vessels, and prohibited them from coming within a mile from shore, until visited by a physician to ascertain whether there were any sick people on board, or if there was an unhealthy cargo, or the vessel came from an unhealthy port. Sir William Keith, when Governor of the Province, in 1726, authorized the appointment of a physician to fulfil this duty. There was no establishment maintained for the detention of vessels until 1742, when a pest-house was built on what was called Province Island, in the Schuylkill, near its mouth. This was used for quarantine purposes from 1742 until 1800. One of the buildings in use then, a fine large stone structure, was still standing there a few years ago. The reason for the establishment of the hospital on the Schuylkill was the arrival of a German vessel carrying emigrants, many of whom were suffering from yellow fever. There was a strong suspicion that typhus (ship) fever had been imported in German vessels, as the number of emigrants had been decimated—about 700 during the year 1742. The Board of Health was organized by the Act of April 22, 1794, wherein it was enacted: "That the messuage, tenements and lot of ground situate and being on the Island in the river Delaware, commonly called STATE ISLAND, which have heretofore been reserved, occupied and employed for the purposes of a public hospital or pest-house, shall be, and the same are hereby erected and established into a Health office for the Port of Philadelphia, * * * and there shall be appointed by the Governor a Resident Physician, a Consulting Physician and a Health Officer, and the Inspectors" shall appoint a Steward, Matron, Nurses, &c. ; vide 3rd Dallas's Laws, 553. State or Providence Island was formerly a part of the Cock plantation ; see in Dr. Smith's History of Delaware County, the map of the early settlements.

The present Quarantine Station, belonging to the City of Philadelphia, was established on Tinicum Island, ten miles below the city, in the early part of the year 1800, it consists of ten acres of ground, and the United States Department adjoining comprises six acres. The buildings were put up in 1800, and were erected in that location because it was considered that if they were too near the city, they would be constantly visited by people out of curiosity, which was very objectionable. There is a large hospital building 179 feet long by 50 feet wide, three stories in height, with wings, built of brick, in the most substantial manner. The main building is occupied by the Steward. The wings were originally called the Lazaretto. There are two, each 64 feet long by 25 feet wide, two stories in height. A hospital for small-pox or ship-fever patients is a separate building. There are also residences for the Physician and the Quarantine Master, and the officers necessary for the proper maintenance of the station. The United States portion has a residence for the Deputy Inspector, and a warehouse for the storage of cargoes. The Lazaretto is very eligibly situated, and the establishment is well adapted to the purposes for which it was built. When proposed, there was a question as to whether the place should be located on Tinicum Island or below Marcus Hook. At that time Chester was but a small place, and there was no idea that it would grow to such an important town as it now is. Therefore, the Lazaretto, which has lately become objectionable to the inhabitants of Chester, was located on Tinicum Island. As Chester is continuing to grow rapidly, the time may come when it will be necessary to remove the Quarantine Station below Marcus Hook, as no other part of the Pennsylvania side of the river appears to be suitable.

The quarantine law, passed Jan. 29, 1818, provides that every ship or vessel coming from any foreign port or place, bound to the port of Philadelphia, between the first day of June and the first day of October in every year, shall come to anchor in the river Delaware, as near the Lazaretto as the draft of water and the weather will allow, before any part of the cargo or baggage be landed, or any person who came in such ship or vessel shall leave her, or any person be permitted to go on board, and shall submit to the examination, required by the Act, and obtain a certificate to proceed to her destination and discharge, but if it shall appear that the vessel is from an unhealthy port, she shall be detained not exceeding twenty days ; 7 Smith's Laws, pp. 5-28.

THE PAST AND PRESENT.

Mr. James Lawrence, a veteran in the Postal Service at Washington, and still in harness, says that the first weekly mail from

¹ See letter in the Delaware County Republican, Jan. 28, 1876, copied from the Pennsylvania Magazine of 1775, as follows, which explains itself:

“GENERAL POSTOFFICE, Philadelphia, February 14, 1775.

It having been found very inconvenient to persons concerned in trade that the mail from Philadelphia to New England sets out but once a fortnight during the winter season, this is to give notice that the New England mail will henceforth go once a week the year round; where a correspondence may be carried on and answer obtained to letters between Philadelphia and Boston in three weeks, which used in the winter to require six weeks.

By command of the Postmaster General, WILLIAM FRANKLIN, Comptroller.’

² 1775, November, William Goddard was Surveyor-General to the Post Office of the United Colonies, at New York. Aitken's Penna. Magazine, 1 Vol. 538. This is an error, however, as there never was such an officer as a Surveyor-General of the Post Office. Benjamin Franklin, Postmaster-General, appointed William Goddard Surveyor of the Post Roads, and Comptroller of the Post Office. See Writings of William L. Goddard, 1 Vol., xii.

³ Died Jan. 30, 1878, aged 65.

Philadelphia to New England commenced in 1754. In 1765 semi-weekly mails between Philadelphia and New York were conveyed in covered Jersey wagons, without springs, and the usual time was three days. Now there are half-a-dozen daily mails between the two cities, and the time less than three hours.

The first "dead letter" of which there is any record in the United Colonies, and which was held for postage, was mailed at Georgetown, S. C., Nov. 22, 1777, directed to the Collector of Customs at Wilmington, N. C., from John Cogdel, announcing the arrival of the schooner "Dispatch." Now they amount to thousands daily, and a large force of clerks, men and women, are required to give them proper attention.

An Act,

FOR ERECTING AND ESTABLISHING A POST OFFICE.

From the Manuscript Laws of Pennsylvania

"Whereas the King and the late Queen Mary by their Royal Letters Patent under the great Seal of England, bearing date the Seventeenth of February, w^{ch} was in the Year One thousand

Six hundred ninety and one, did grant to Thomas Neale Esq his Executors Administrators and assigns full Power and authority to erect Settle and establish within the Kings Colonies and Plantations in America, one or more office or offices for receiving and Dispatching of Letters and Pacquetts by post, and to receive, send and deliver the same, under such Rates and Summs of money as shall be agreeable to the Rates established by Act of Parliam^t in England, or as the Planters and others should agree to give on the first Settlem^t, To have, hold and enjoy the same for the term of twenty-one years wth and under such Powers, Limitations and Conditions as in and by the said Letters Patent may more fully appear. * * And whereas the King's postmaster General of England at the Request, Desire & nomination of the said Thomas Neale hath deputed Andrew Hamilton Esq, for such time and under such Conditions. as in his Deputation is for that purpose mentioned to govern and manage the said General Post office, for and throughout all the King's Plantations and Colonies in the main Land or Continent of America, and the Islands adjacent thereto, as in and by the said Deputation may more fully appear : And Whereas the said Andrew Hamilton hath by and with the good Liking & Approbatjon of the Postmaster General of England made application to the Proprietary and Govern^t of this Province and Territories, and ffreemen thereof Convened in general Assembly, that they would ascertain and establish such rates and Summs of money upon Letters and Pacquets going by post, as may be an effectual Encouragem^t for carrying on and maintaining a general Post, and y^o Proprietary and Govern^t and ffreemen in General Assembly mett, considering that the maintaining of mutual and speedy Correspondencies is very beneficial to the King and his Subjects, and a great Encouragement to Trade, and that the same is best carried on and managed by publick Post, as well as for preventing Inconveniencies which heretofore have hapned for want thereof, as for a Certain safe & speedy Dispatch carrying and recarrying of all Letters and Pacquets of Letters by Post to and from all parts and places within the Continent of America and several parts of Europe and that the well ordering thereof is matter of general Concernm^t and of great advantage; and being willing to encourage such a publick Benefit, have therefore

Enacted, and Be it Enacted by the said Proprietary and Govern^t of this Province and Territories, by and with the advice and Consent of the ffreemen thereof in General Assembly mett, and by the authority of the same, That there be from henceforth one General Letter Office Erected and Established within the Town of Philadelphia, from whence all Letters and Pacquets whatsoever may be with Speed and Expedition sent into any part of y^o neighboring Colonies and Plantations on the main Land and Continent of America, or into any other of the King's Kingdoms or Dominions, or into any Kingdom or Countrey beyond the Seas, at which said office all Returns and Answers may likewise be received; And that it shall and may be lawful to and for the Master of the said office to demand, have, Receive and take for the Postage and Conveyance of all such Letters which he shall so convey carry and send post as aforesaid according to y^e several Rates and Summs of Current Money of this Province hereafter mentioned; That is to say, ffor the Post of every single Letter from Europe, the West Indies, or other parts beyond Sea four pence, and all letters are to be accounted single tho' they contain Merchants' Accompts, none exceeding one sheet of Paper, Bills of Lading, Gazets, Invoices or Bills of Exchange, and for each Pacquet of Letters from the places aforesaid, eight pence, and a Pacquet shall be accounted three Letters, at the least; And for the post of every single Letter from Boston or Rhode Island to Philadelphia, or from Philadelphia to Boston or Rhode Island, eighteen pence, and so in proportion to the greatness and quantity of Letters. And for the post of each single Letter from Philadelphia to Piscatway and other parts to the Eastward of Boston, and from Piscatway and said Eastern parts to Philadelphia, two shillings, and so in proportion as aforesaid: And for the post of each single Letter from the Post Road in Conetticot Colony to Philadelphia, and from Conetticot Colony, any where on the Post road, one shilling, and so in proportion as aforesaid: And for the Post of each single Letter from Philadelphia to New York, or from New York to Philadelphia, eight pence, and so in proportion as aforesaid: And for the Post of each single Letter to or from any place within Eighty miles of Philadelphia, six pence, and so in proportion as aforesaid: And for the Post of each single Letter from Philadelphia to Maryland or Virginia, or from Virginia and Maryland to Philadelphia, eighteen pence, and so in proportion as aforesaid, provided they come or goe by Post, but if by any private person delivered into the office four pence: And if any Letters or Pacquets shall ly or remain in the office uncalled for by the space of forty-eight hours, The Post master then sending them forth to the respective houses of the persons to whom they are directed shall have and receive one penny more for each packet or Letter: Provided always That all Letters directed to or going from the Proprietary and Govern^r shall be free.

And Be it further Enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every such person & persons as shall be employed in the several stages within this Province and Territories, shall and may pass and repass all and every fferry or fferries within this Province and Territories, at any time during the Continuance of this act in force without paying any Rate or Summ of money, either for his or their own or his or their horses passage or passages: And if any fferryman or fferrymen or other person or persons Interested in any such fferry or fferries within this Province or Territories, shall at any time neglect, refuse, or delay the conveying over his or their fferry or fferries any such person or persons imployed as aforesaid in the Execution of their respective Employ^t or employments, or his or their horse or horses, He shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of five pounds, to be sued and recovered in any Court of Record within this Province by Bill, Plaint or Information, wherein no Essoign, Protection or Wager of the Law shall be allowed, one half of the said fforfeiture towards the support of the Govern^t of this Province and Territories and the other half to the Master of the said general Letter office who shall sue and prosecute for the same.

And Whereas upon the arrival of Ships into the Several parts of this Province, many Letters directed to Several Merchants and others, have been detained long to the great damage of y^e Merchants, and want of that speedy advice which they might have had, if the same had forthwith been dispatched: and sometimes such Letters have been delivered by the Masters or Passengers of such Ships to ignorant and loose hands that understand not the way and means of speedy Conveyance and Delivery of Letters, whereby great Prejudice hath accrued to the affairs of Merchants and others, as well by the miscarriage of many Letters as many times by opening of the same, to the discovering of the Correspondencies and Secrets of Merch^{ts}.

Be it therefore Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That all Letters and Pacquets of Letters, that by any Master of any Ship or vessel shall or may be brought to any Port within this Province, shall by such Masters be forthwith delivered to the said Master of the general letter office for the time being, his servants or agents, by him or them to be delivered according to the several and respective Directions of the Same; and in default thereof every such Master as aforesaid offending in the premises shall forfeit the sum of twenty shillings, to be recovered in such manner and to such uses as aforesaid, and for their respective Encouragem^t in the observance hereof: Be it also enacted, That the said Master of the said office his Agents or Servants shall pay to every Master or Masters of any such Ship or Ships, vessel or vessels so delivering in Letters as aforesaid, one penny for every such Letter or Letters, Pacquet or pacquets; Excepting always from this Act such Letters of Merchants and Masters, Owners of any such ship or any part of the Cargoe, as concern the said ship or Cargoe thereof, or shall be sent by p[']sons employed by them for carriage of such Letters, or by any Messenger or Messengers, sent on purpose for or concerning the private affair of any person or persons, or by any private friend or ffrriends to his her or their ffrriend or ffrriends within the s[']d Province or Territories thereof. And Be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid that no person or persons whatsoever other than the said Master of the General Letter office aforesaid, his Agents or Servants shall presume to carry, recarry or deliver Letters for hire (other than as before excepted) or set up or employ any spot post, Horse post, packet Boat or Conveyance whatsoever, for carrying, conveying or recarrying any Lett^{rs} or Pacquets by sea or Land, upon pain of forfeiting the sum of forty pounds current money of this Province for every several offence against the Tenour of this present act, to be sued & recovered in such manner and to such uses as aforesaid. Provided that this Act or anything y^ein contained shall continue in force no longer than seven years from and after the publication thereof, anything therein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding."—*Chap. 50 of the Laws, Recorded A, Vol. I., 40.*¹

 1732-3—Peter Evans,³ Bedford's Deputy, Feb. 6. Evans was Moore's son-in-law; he resigned 1743. 1 Pa. Arc., 385.

² In Pa. Gazette, Nov. 30, 1732, it is stated that, "On Saturday last (25th), died JOHN MOORE, Collector of his Majesty's Customs for this Port, which place he enjoyed above thirty years. He dyed in the 74th year of his age." His commission as Collector, signed by Evelyn, is in possession of one of his descendants. In the Pa. Archives, 2nd series, the following list of the Collectors of Customs is given, viz: "John Bewley, 1698 to 1702; John Moore, 1706 (? 1703) to 1728; Ralph Assheton, 1732; Grosvenor Bedford, 1733; Richard Pearne (died), 1762; Enoch Story, 1762; Abraham Taylor (resigned), 1762; John Swift, (vice Taylor), June 9, 1762; Robert Bayard, Feb. 21, 1772; John Patterson, Oct. 19, 1772." It is said in the Life of Dr. William Smith, 2 Vol., 488: "John Moore, it appears, came with his wife and family to Philadelphia prior to 1700, and became the King's Collector at that Port; this we know from his commission, which is before me, dated 1703, signed by Evelyn.

³ In an obituary of Peter Evans; Pa. Gazette, June 20, 1745, it is stated, he was "an eminent counsellor, and for many years Collector of the King's Customs."

He was Deputy in the absence of Collector Taylor, from 1751 to 1753. William Till was Collector at New Castle during the above period.
 1762—John Swift, vice Taylor, June 9. Still in office Dec. 5, 1771. Dr. Thomas Græme is said to have been Collector before his death, in 1772. See Memoirs of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, 1 Vol., 460, (2d edition.)

The Register's Court

AND THE REGISTER OF WILLS.

BY FURMAN SHEPPARD.

[Reprinted by permission, from a paper book.]

The statutory provisions relative to the determination of disputed matters before the Register of Wills, and the Register's Court, are under the Act of March 15, 1832, "Relating to Registers and Registers' Courts;" P. L., 146. Section 13, Purdon, 10th edition, 406, pl. 8, enacts as follows:

"Whenever a caveat shall be entered against the admission of any testamentary writing to probate, and the person entering the same shall allege as the ground thereof any matter of fact touching the validity of such writing,

² Patterson's son-in-law. ³ Dr. Moore's brother-in-law.

it shall be lawful for the Register, at the request of any person interested, to issue a precept to the Court of Common Pleas of the respective county, directing an issue to be formed upon said fact, or facts, and also upon such others as may be lawfully objected to the said writing in the following form, namely:—

Section 25, of the same Act, Purdon, 1255, pl. 20, is as follows: "Where objections are made, or a caveat is entered against the probate of any last Will and Testament, and no precept for an issue is directed by the Register, into the Court of Common Pleas, as aforesaid; or where objections are made to the granting of letters of administration to any person applying therefor; or where any question of kindred, or other disputable and difficult matter comes into controversy, before any Register, he shall, at the request of any person interested, appoint a Register's Court for the decision thereof, to be held at a time certain, and as soon as convenient, at the Court House, or other public place, in the respective county, giving convenient notice of the time and place of holding the same, by citation or otherwise, to all concerned, as well as to the persons interested, as to the Judges whose assistance he shall require, and in the meantime he shall do and receive all proper Acts preparatory to the business of such Court."

Section 40, of the same Act, Purdon, p. 1256, pl. 21, declares that, "The testimony of all witnesses examined in any cause litigated before any Register's Court, shall be taken in writing, and made part of the proceedings therein, upon which the Court having jurisdiction of such cause by appeal, may affirm, reverse, alter or modify the decree of the Register's Court."

Section 41, Purdon, p. 1256, pl. 22, enacts that, "Whenever a dispute upon a matter of fact arises before any Register's Court, the said Court shall, at the request of either party, direct a precept for an issue to the Court of Common Pleas of the County for the trial thereof, in the form hereinbefore prescribed for the direction of Registers, changing such parts thereof as should be changed, according to the circumstances of the case; and facts established by the verdict returned shall not be re-examined on any appeal."

Some light may perhaps be thrown on these provisions by tracing their origin and history in the legislation of the State on the subject, which may be indicated as follows: In the Charter of Charles II. to William Penn, there is the following provision: "And we likewise give and grant unto the said William Penn and his Heirs, and to his and their deputies and lieutenants, such power and authoritie to appoint and establish Judges and Justices, Magistrates and officers whatsoever, for what cause soever, for the probates of Wills and for the granting of administrations, within the precincts aforesaid, and with what power soever, and in such form as to the said William Penn or his heirs shall seem most convenient." See Duke of Yorke's Book of Laws, Harrisburg, 1879, page 83.

The first legislative provision on the subject subsequent to the Charter, seems to be the Act of Assembly passed in the year 1705, entitled, "An Act concerning the probates of written and nuncupative Wills, and for confirming devises of lands," in 1 Smith's Laws, 33, the 8th section of which, page 35, is as follows:

"And be it further enacted, that there shall be an officer called Register-General, to be commissioned by the Governor, from time to time, for the probate of Wills, and granting letters of administration in this Province; which

Register-General shall keep his office at Philadelphia, and shall from time to time, constitute a sufficient deputy to officiate for him in each of the other counties of this Province, who, being by him deputed, shall be, and are by this Act empowered to take probate of Wills and grant letters of administration in the respective counties, as fully and amply as the Register-General himself ever could or can do, according to the powers granted by the Royal Charter of the late King Charles II. Which Deputies shall have and use a common Seal, to be provided at the charge of the respective counties where they serve, with like inscriptions as is, or shall be, upon the Seal of the Register-General's office at Philadelphia. Provided, &c.

This Act was followed by another, passed June 7, 1712, which will be found in Peter Miller's Laws, Vol. 1., p. 50. It is not contained in Smith's Laws, as it is a repealed Act, but is referred to therein in Vol. I., p. 36, n. x. By this last-mentioned Act it is provided as follows :

“And be it further enacted, that where objections are made, or caveats entered against proving any Will or granting letters of administration; and where there is or shall be occasion to take the final accounts of executors or administrators, or make distribution of decedents' estates, the Register-General and his Deputies, respectively, shall, in every case, call to their assistance two or more of the Justices of the said Courts of Common Pleas for the county where they are concerned, who are hereby empowered and required to give their assistance accordingly, to decide the said caveats and matters in controversy, settle the said accounts, to make distributions, and do all other judicial acts, as do or shall belong, or ought of right to be done by any person or persons having power by law to take probate of Wills, and grant letters of administration.”

There does not appear to have been any other legislation on the subject until the adoption of the State Constitution of 1776, the 34th section of which declared that a “Register's office for the probate of Wills and granting letters of administration, and an office for recording of Deeds, shall be kept in each city and county.” This language does not establish a Register's Court.

In the succeeding year, the offices of Register and Recorder having been displaced, by the change of State government, were re-established under the Constitution, by the Act of March 14, 1777; 1 Smith's Laws, 443.

Subsequently, on Feb. 28, 1780, an Act was passed entitled, “An Act for Erecting an High Court of Errors and Appeals.” It will be found in McKean's Laws of Pa., 270. The 8th section of the Act is as follows :

“And be it further enacted, by the authority aforesaid, that upon hearing of any cause litigated before the Register of Wills and for granting of administrations, the depositions of the several witnesses examined therein shall be in writing, and made a part of the proceedings in the cause; upon which the said Court of Errors and Appeals may reverse the decree of the said Register for any error, arising either in fact or law or affirm the same, according to the merits and justice of the case.”

It will be observed that the reversal may be based either upon fact or upon law. In Section 9 of the Act it is declared as follows :

“ Provided, &c., That if the said Register, upon a dispute upon the facts arising before him, shall send an issue into the Court of Common Pleas of the County, to try the said facts, which he shall do at the request of either party, and if a verdict establishing the said facts be returned, the said facts shall not be re-examined on appeal; and that no appeal from the decree of the said Register concerning the validity of the Will or the right to administer, shall stay the proceedings or prejudice the act of any executor or administrator pending the same, provided the executor shall give sufficient security for the faithful execution of the Will and Testament to the said Register; but in case of refusal, the said Register is hereby directed to grant letters of administration during the dispute, which shall suspend the power of such executor during that time.”

This section separates fact from law, and provides a mode of conclusively settling the former.

The Act above mentioned was repealed by the 22nd Section of the Act of April 13, 1791, hereinafter cited; but it appears to be the first appearance in our Legislature of the language of the 41st Section of the present Act of 1832, and it will be observed that that language is here applied to the Register. It is evident, therefore, that the language, does not refer to, or imply, a Court, or judicial proceedings, or judicial discretion, for it is used here with reference to a lay officer, and to non-judicial proceedings, and its obvious intent was to give a positive right, as against the officer, and to displace all discretion on his part. The significance of the language, so far, at least, as verbal interpretation is concerned, and the aim and purport of the provision, cannot surely be essentially changed by merely changing, as was subsequently done, the person to whom the language is addressed, and by transferring its application from the Register to the Register's Court.

Next followed the State Constitution of 1790, which, in Article V. Section 11, declared that “ a Register's office for the probate of Wills and granting letters of administration and an office for recording Deeds, shall be kept in each county; ” and in Section 7 of same article, declared that “ the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, of each county, any two of whom shall be a quorum, shall compose the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace and Orphans' Court thereof, and the Register of Wills, together with the said Judges, or any two of them, shall compose the Register's Court of each county. ”

This is the first constitutional establishment and recognition of a Register's Court, for we have already seen that the Constitution of 1776 speaks only of “ a Register's office. ”

Next follows an “ Act to establish the Judicial Courts of this Commonwealth, in conformity with the alterations and amendments in the Constitution. ” passed April 13, 1791; in 3 Smith's Laws, 28. The 18th Section is as follows :

“ And be it further enacted on the authority aforesaid, that upon the hearing of any cause litigated before the said Register’s Court, the depositions of the several witnesses examined therein shall be taken in writing, and made part of the proceedings in the cause, upon which the said High Court of Errors and Appeals may reverse the decree of the said Register’s Court, for any error arising either in law or fact, or affirm the same, according to the merits and justice of the case. Provided, always, that if the Register’s Court, upon a dispute upon facts arising before them, shall send an issue into the Court of Common Pleas to try the said facts, which they shall do at the request of either party, and a verdict establishing the said facts be returned, the said facts shall not be re-examined on appeal; and that no appeal from the decree of the said Register’s Courts, concerning the validity of a Will, or the right to administer, shall stay proceedings or prejudice the acts of any executor or administrator pending the same, provided the executor shall give sufficient security for the faithful execution of the Will and Testament to the Register; but in case of refusal the said Register is hereby directed to grant letters of administration during the dispute, which shall suspend the power of the executor during that time.”

It will be observed that the foregoing section transfers and applies to the Register’s Court, the language which by the above-cited Act of 1780, was applied to the Register, and that it also continues the distinction between law and fact, and the difference in the mode of dealing with each respectively.

The foregoing Act continued in force until the passage of the revised Act of March 15, 1832, “ Relating to Registers and Registers’ Courts; P. L., 135.

The 40th Section of this Act [Purdon, p. 1256, pl. 21,] is as follows: “ The testimony of all witnesses examined in any cause litigated before any Register’s Court, shall be taken in writing and made a part of the proceedings therein, upon which testimony the Court having jurisdiction of such cause, by appeal may affirm, reverse, alter or modify the decree of the Register’s Court.” The 41st Section [Purdon, p. 1256, pl. 22] declares that “ whenever a dispute upon a matter of fact arises before any Register’s Court, the said Court shall at the request of either party, direct a precept for an issue to the Court of Common Pleas of the County, for the trial thereof, in the form prescribed for the direction of Registers, changing such parts thereof as should be changed according to the circumstances of the case; and the facts established by the verdict returned, shall not be re-examined on any appeal.” The distinction between law and fact, is by these provisions still maintained.

“ The Act of 1832 is not of very easy, consistent interpretation,” as was said by Thompson, C. J., in 21 P. F. Smith, 413. It may be well, therefore, with reference to the two sections of it above mentioned, to quote the observations made by the revisers in their report. See 2 Parke & Johnson’s Digest, 869.

“ The residue of the Bill relates to the Register’s Courts. It is to be composed of the Register and any two Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of the respective county. This is the provision of the Constitution, see Article V, Sec. 7 (Purdon, 703, 705). The powers and jurisdiction of the Court are there described. In substance they are those contained in the Act of June 7, 1712; Purdon, 703, n. The Register is required to record the proceedings of his Courts in a book, and to frame a sufficient index thereto. This last provision is new, but of obvious utility. The testimony of witnesses examined in these Courts, is to be committed to writing, and error in law, or in fact, may be assigned therein. These provisions are from the Act of April 13, 1791, Sec. 18 (Purdon, 704). The Court, on the request of a party, is required to direct a precept into the Court of Common Pleas, for the trial of disputed facts in the manner prescribed for the direction of the Registers. The verdict returned is made conclusive of the facts established thereby. (Purdon, 704)."

With reference to the section of the Act providing for the issuing of a precept by the Register to the Common Pleas, the revisers in their report above referred to, have indicated their view of the scope and purpose of the Act, and thus afforded a key to its proper construction. Their explanatory remarks, as follows, will be found in Parke & Johnson, 864.

"The preceding sections having provided the means of compelling the production of Wills for probate, and the attendance of witnesses; having also supplied certain rules for the direction of Registers in matters of evidence, provision is made in this section for the decision of controversies, which by existing laws require the intervention of a jury. When opposition is intended to the admission of a testamentary writing to probate, the practice is to lodge with the Register what is termed a caveat. The Register thereupon convenes a Register's Court, according to the direction of the Act of June 7, 1712, (Purdon, 703, n.). If the legal sufficiency of the writing, or conclusions of law from admitted facts only are in controversy, that Court is the proper tribunal, and competent to the decision of the entire question. But when the controversy relates, as it frequently does, to extrinsic facts, such as the capacity or incapacity of the supposed testator, the Court is required by the Act of April 13, 1791, Sec. 18, Purdon, 704, to send, at the request of a party, an issue into the Court of Common Pleas, for the trial of the facts in dispute. As the Court can in such case exercise no discretion, the direction of the Act of June 7, 1712, seems unnecessary. The section now the subject of remark, proposes an alteration of the practice in this particular. For this purpose it authorizes the Register, in all cases where any matter of fact touching the validity of a testamentary writing shall be alleged as the ground of caveat, to send at the request of a party a precept in the name of the Commonwealth to the Court of Common Pleas directing an issue. The form of the precept is given, and the result of the trial is made conclusive of the facts established by it. By this method circuitry and some inconvenience and delay will be avoided. The precept has been framed with a view to the exigency. It is unnecessary to remark upon its contents in detail. The course of the proceeding required by the precept is left to the practice of the Court to which it is sent. Detail in this particular would have been inconsistent with necessary brevity, and also would have introduced matters inappropriate to its title. With this section the proceedings preliminary to probate conclude." In questions of law, or of conclusions of law from admitted facts, the determination is solely by the Court. But where the controversy relates to extrinsic facts, the Court is required, upon request, to send an issue to the Common Pleas.

It will also be observed that the language of the Act of 1791, referred to by the revisers, is of a double aspect, for it apparently contains an element of discretion—"if the Register's Court, upon a dispute upon facts arising before them, shall send an issue," etc.; and it contains, secondly, a positive command, "which they shall do at the request of either party." It will also be seen that the revisers appear to have wholly rejected the element of discretion, and to have retained only the positive command, unqualified by, and detached from the previously subsisting discretion, thus markedly indicating by an emphatic contra-distinction, that the imperative feature of the statute, as modified by them, was deliberately intended to exclude the discretionary feature. This may throw some light upon the meaning of the revisers when they say in their explanatory remarks, that by the Act reported by them, "Where the controversy relates to extrinsic facts, the Court is required to send at the request of a party, an issue into the Court of Common Pleas for the trial of the facts in dispute," and the Court "can in such case exercise no discretion."

The Surveyors and Regulators

OF PHILADELPHIA.

Before giving a sketch of what is now "The Department of Surveys," I would state the Surveyors-General were evidently the chief surveyors of the City as well as of the State, and surveyed and laid out all the lots of the purchasers and others, and that this continued until the Revolution. We all know that Thomas Holme made the original plan of the City of Philadelphia, and surveyed the lots, as did also Edward Penington and Thomas Fairman. On Dec. 14, 1719, Jacob Taylor was employed to run the streets of the city, and in 1737, Benjamin Eastburn was appointed by the Common Council one of the Regulators of the Streets, etc., and altered the plan of the city streets.¹ After this date the Surveyor-General, for the time being, was always appointed one of the Regulators. I have no means of knowing whether before 1782, any one except the Surveyors-General surveyed and laid out the building lots in this city; but in the year 1774, David Rittenhouse and Edward Bonsall, two skilful surveyors, were appointed with others, Regulators of "Party Walls, Buildings and Partition Fences."

From an old manuscript² of 16½ pages, all in the handwriting of the late James Pearson (except the first four pages, which were written by Reading Howell, and a foot-note on the third page, by Alphonso C. Ireland), appointed one of the City Surveyors, under the Act of 1782, I copy the following interesting account of the Regulators of the Streets, etc., from 1698 to 1774, which I will continue, and to which I propose to add a list of those whom the authorities I have consulted and the surveys in the Department point out as the Principal Surveyors of the City, and a list of those appointed Regulators of Party Walls, Streets, etc., at different times. I give here a copy of the old manuscript referred to, in full, viz :

² This old MS. is now in the possession of Spencer Bonsall, late Chief Surveyor of the city, a great-grandson of the above-mentioned Edward Bonsall, who was appointed Surveyor and Regulator in 1774, and who died 1 mo. 23d, 1826, in the 88th year of his age.

“ The earliest direction that I find in Pennsylvania for appointing Regulators of the streets, is by a Law passed the 10th William III., 1698, as follows: Forasmuch as the Ornament of Towns & Conveniency & health of the Inhabitants so much depend upon the due Regulacion of Streets and Landing places, and that the said Streets & Landing places & Water Courses may be Effectually Regulated & repaired,

Be it Enacted by the Proprie'y & Governor & With the advice & Consent of y^e ffremen of this province & territories in General Assembly met & by the Authority of the Same, That it shall & may be Lawful for the Gov'r for the time being with four of the Council, from time to time to Nominate & Appoint such & so many as he & they shall think needful of the Substantial Inhabitants of the said towns respectively as often as Occasion shall be, to Regulate the said Streets & Water Courses, and to Order the pitching & Paving thereof, as also the clearing of docks, where such may be, & repairing landing places & Bridges in the said towns, Provided that all water Courses underground in such towns as aforesaid shall be arched & laid with brick or stone; and for defraying the charge of Pitching, paving, Gravelling & Regulacion of sd Streets & Scouring & Cleaning the docks, Each Inhabitant Shall Pay toward the same in Proportion to the Number of feet his or her or their lotts or land Adjoining on each or either side of the Said Streets or docks; & for Repairing landing places, Bridges, making Common Shores, Sewers & Paving, Pitching, Gravelling & Regulating any Part of the streets or Scouring & Cleaning Any Part of the docks belonging to the Public, each inhabitant in the said Respective town or Place Shall Pay his her or their proportional Rates according to their estates in each town.

These Regulators with the advice and Assistance of the Justices of the Peace of the Respective Counties or at least two of them were Impowered to Levy a Tax for the public purposes aforesaid & enforce payment &c. and further enacts ‘ That each & every owner & Inhabitant of any & Every house in Philadelphia, Newcastle & Chester shall plant one or more tree or trees, viz, Pines, unbearing Mulberries, Water Poplars, Lime or other shady & Wholesome Trees before the door of his her or their House or Houses, That the Houses may be well shaded from the Violence of the Sun—And rendered more Healthy.’—Vide Manuscript Laws of Pennsylvania, page 64, &c., Book C, page 57.

ORDERED that in persuance of the Act for the Regulating the Cities and Towns of this Government, that 'a Commission be forthwith directed to Francis Cook, James Atkinson, Charles Read, Jonathan Dickinson, Thomas Masters and John Parsons, to regulate the Streets & Water courses of the Town of Philadelphia, and generally to transact and perform all the Several particulars for which power is given by Said Act.'

Extracts from the Commission.—Book C, page 85 &c. [2 C. R., 2nd ed., 23.]

As often as occasion shall be to Regulate the streets & water courses of the Town of Philadelphia and to order the pitching, paving and Graveling thereof &c., And for defraying the Charges of such regulations I do hereby require you or any Four of you with the advice and assistance of the Justices of the Peace of the County of Philadelphia or at least Two of them, to calculate and compute the said charges and there upon with the assent of me and Four of the Council equally to lay rates &c. Given under my hand and seal at Philadelphia 2d 4th mo. 1701.

In the Charter Incorporating the Town of Philadelphia and Erecting it into a City there is not any express authority granted the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council to regulate the lines of the streets, or the Water Courses of Philada. But they are authorized 'to make (and they may make, ordain, constitute and establish) such and so many good and reasonable Laws, Ordinances and Constitutions (not repugnant to the Laws of England and this Government) as to the greatest part of them in such Common Council assembled (where the Mayor and Recorder for the time being are always to be present) shall seem necessary and convenient for the Government of the said City.

It is probable that the persons named in the Commission aforesaid, Continued to act as the Regulators of the streets and Water courses for several years, as some of them were of Aldermen and others of the first Common Council appointed by Charter and all of them strict friends of the Proprietor. The Laws of 1698 continued in full force for many years and never (was) formaly repealed but only partially supplied in the year 1711, by the act raising money on the Inhabitants of the city for the public use and benefit thereof.

In those times some dispute had arisen respecting the streets, for on the 21st Sept., 1705, The Mayor and Recorder reported to the Common Council 'That they had applied to the Commissioners (of property I suppose) to consent with them to lay out the Bounds of the City and that the Commissioners refused to Join with the Corporation therein'—and the Recorder (David Lloyd) 'do consider w^t method may be taken to do the same & Report it at the Next Meeting.' No report appears on the minutes. But on the 29th April, 1706, 'The Recorder, Alderman Story and Robert Assheton were directed to draw a new Draught of a Charter and Insert therein such Privileges as appeared deficient, also to write a letter to the Proprietor on the subject and that a copy of the said letter be sent to some person in London to solicit the same with the Proprietary. The Draft of the Charter was produced at a subsequent Meeting, amended and ordered to be engrossed and sent over to London, but the result is not on the minutes.

It is probable that there was an ordinance for surveying the streets about this time, for the Act of Assembly passed Feb. 18, 1710-'11, only provides that the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty should 'Nominate and chuse Two or more discreet persons understanding the art of Building and Qualify them according to Law for Surveyors or Regulators within the same.' These were only to lay out the lines for foundations of buildings and for party walls, which is all those persons were to do by that act,¹ which was repealed by the Queen (Anne) Feb. 10th, 1713. But during the continuance of that Act and before they could have notice of the repeal, the Corporation 14 Nov., 1712, Ordered the Mayor and Commonalty of the City to view the respective Streets and Water Courses within the same and consider the proper methods for the more Commodious Regulation thereof, And on the 19th June, 1713, the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council of the City in Common Council assembled (probably a report made) concluded on the Regulation of the Water Courses of several of the streets. And there being Overseers of the Streets and Roads at this time perhaps the streets were formed by the Citizens then called out to work on them Agreeably to those regulations, as to this day several of them Descend nearly in the manner then Ordered. (I have omitted the above.) That on the 14th Nov., 1712, Jonathan Dickinson and the Commonalty of the City 'Ordered that an Ordinance be drawn by the Recorder for the better Regulation of the Streets of this City, and for Obliging the

¹The Common Council on July 22, 1712, appointed Thomas Griffiths, Thomas Redman and Samuel Powel, "Regulators of Particion Walls within this city."

Owners of lands, &c. within the same to pave before their respective Tenements.

On the 12th of March, 1713-'14, George Roche, Mayor, 'Aldermen Dickinson, Carter and Teague, Thomas Griffiths, Owen Roberts, Joseph Redman and William Fishbourne or some four of them are appointed Regulators of the Streets and Water Courses of this city, who may from time to time give such orders therein as may best suit and accommodate the public.'

The Law for raising money on the Inhabitants of Philada for the public use and benefit thereof, Pass'd 7th June 1712, only provides for the chusing of Six Assessors to Assess the Inhabitants and Estates within the city, But takes no authority seemly from the corporation, only defining some of the powers thereof, and makes no provision for the appointment of other persons to regulate the Streets or Water Courses, the former mode continuing in Use.

On the 9th of August 1717, the Mayor and Commonalty made an appointment of nine persons to regulate the Streets and Water Courses (some of these were Aldermen and others regulators of Party Walls) and in the following year, Thomas Redman (a Regulator) was appointed Inspector of Water Courses, who was to take care that they were done according to Regulation.

On the 14th of Decem'r 1719, the Mayor (William Fishbourne) and Alderman Hill 'In conjunction with the Regulators are requested to Employ Jacob Taylor to run out the several streets of this city, and that they Cause the same to be Staked Out to prevent any encroachment that may happen in Building for the want thereof.'

The Law passed 24th Feb'y 1720-21, Is silent on the powers of the corporation to regulate the Streets and Water Courses, But gives authority to them to appoint Surveyors or Regulators to mark the lines of lots for the foundations of buildings, value Party Walls &c. and directing the mode of appeal from the Surveyors to the Mayor and Commonalty 'at the next Common Council.'

On the 21st April 1721, the Mayor, &c., pursuant to the Law above mentioned appointed George Claypoole, Thomas Redman, Samuel Powel and James Steele or any two of them 'as Regulators of Party Walls and Partition fences within this City.' The Mayor and Commonalty continued to regulate the Streets and Water Courses by a Delegated authority to several members of their own Body, amongst whom were generally some of the Surveyors or Regulators of buildings and Party Walls. For on the 24th of April, 1723, It was ordered in Common Council that 'Aldermen Fishbourne and Carter, Edward Roberts and John Cadwalader (Common Council-men) with the Surveyor General lay out the High Street and fix the wharves for the Ferry' (meaning the middle Ferry on the Schuylkill. A Similar appointment on the 25th of March, this year, of six persons 'to consider the best method of the Water Course to the river on Mulberry Street and make report thereof to the next Council.' (The Arch leading to the river in Mulberry Street was now pulled down and the Hill impassable.)

On the 30th Aug., 1725, Evan Owen, Israel Pemberton and John Jones were appointed Regulators of the City 'and Jacob Taylor is added in the room of Thomas Redman, Deceased.' These were only Regulators of Lots, Party Walls, &c.

It appears by a minute of the Corporation 26th June, 1727, That an Ordinance for the better Regulating the Streets and Water Courses, pitching and paving the streets, &c., had been published and in use many years. Said Ordinance was now revised by the Mayor and Commonalty in Common Council assembled and some new regulations respecting the Pumps standing in the streets, (All of whom belong to Private Persons) was ordered to be added thereto.

There is no Memorial (that I can find) relative to the streets or Regulators until the 29th October, 1733, when the corporation ordered, that 'The Mayor for the time being Aldermen Fitzwater, Edward Roberts, George Mifflin, John Jones, Israel Pemberton, Edward Warner and Jacob Taylor or any four of them, of which the Mayor for the time being to be one, to regulate the Streets of this city.'

And at a Common Council August 8th, 1737, 'Benjamin Eastburn, the Surveyor General of this Province,' (Jacob Taylor, late Surveyor General being Deceased,) 'is now appointed one of the Regulators of this city, and is to assist in all Regulacions of the Streets, who is to be paid for his trouble in giving his Assistance.' It is probable none were paid before this time for regulating the streets, (except a small sum to 'Jacob Taylor for running out High street' &c.) as there is no item in the Accounts for that service, they being mostly either the Aldermen or of the Common Council and generally rich men.

In 1742, Aug't. 9th. The Corporation 'having taken into consideration that there are not a sufficient number of Regulators to regulate the streets of this city, the following persons are appointed for that purpose, viz't. the Mayor and Recorder for the time being George Fitzwater, Israel Pemberton, Edward Warner, William Parsons, Samuel Powel, Senior, Samuel Rhoads, Edward Shippen and Thomas Hart, and it is Ordered that all Regulations be made by some four of them, The Mayor or Recorder being one of the number.'

The Common Council appointed on the 14th of July 1748 'Nicholas Scull (Surv'r Gen'l) and Joseph Fox,' together with such of the former appointment (in 1742) as could attend, Regulators of the streets of this city; as several of those then chosen were since disabled by sickness or removed out of Town. And at the same time directed sd N Scull and Joseph Fox with Samuel Rhoads to determine 'the lines and boundaries Dividing the grounds of Edmund Wolley and Casper Ulrich and make report to the next Common Council.' This shows that the Corporation understood that those persons whom they appointed to survey the streets were also to survey & and regulate the Lots. And for many years prior to this time there was no persons specially appointed to Regulate lots and Party Walls, but those chosen to survey the streets performed the whole.

On the 29th of April 1758, 'It being represented to the Corporation now met' That of the Regulators of the Streets heretofore appointed, no more remained than Samuel Rhoads, Joseph Fox and Nicholas Scull, which not being thought a sufficient number, the Board agree to add Philip Syng, Hugh Roberts, Jacob Lewis, and John Palmer, any three of whom, together with the Mayor and Recorder, or either of them, and any three of the Aldermen for the time being, to make a Quorum for regulating the streets and water courses of this City.' Being in order of time it may be well to note here the Law passed the 6th March 1762, appointing six Commissioners to pave the streets of Philadelphia and for Regulating, making and amending the Water Courses and Common Sewers &c. &c. By this Act 'The Mayor or Recorder and any Four Aldermen with the Commissioners shall consider and agree which of the streets &c' shall be first paved 'having regard to the streets that are most used by the Country in bringing their produce and Effects to Market,' and in another section it is 'Enacted, That the said Mayor or Recorder and Four Aldermen together with any four of the Regulators of the said City for the time being shall appoint and direct the Regulation of the said Streets, Lanes, Alleys and 'Common Sewers, with degree of Descent of each Water Course.' And in the supplement to that Act, Pass'd 4th March 1763, the footways are to be paved, posts to be fixed by the Owners of the several lots when the Mayor and Aldermen with the Commissioners shall direct. There is the same authority Given to the Magistrates and Regulators in these Acts as in that pass'd in 1769, respecting of Streets, lanes, Alleys, Water Courses and Common Sewers.

On the 10th of April, 1764, 'John Lukens, Surveyor General is appointed by the Board '(of Common Council) one of the Regulators of this city in the room of Nicholas Scull, Deceased.'

No new appointment of Regulators was made until The 25th Day of June, 1774, when on 'Being represented to the Board, that an additional number of Regulators were much wanted, The following persons were appointed Regulators of party walls, Buildings and Partition fences in the City of Philadelphia: Vitz, David Rittenhouse, Robert Smith, (Carpenter,) Thomas Morris,

Edward Bonsall and William Callady.' This was the last appointment under William Penn's Charter to Philadelphia. These persons with those of former appointments that chose to act perform'd the business of Regulating unto near the middle of the Revolutionary war."

Under the Act of Assembly of Feb. 24, 1721, Common Council was empowered to appoint two or more skilful persons Surveyors or Regulators of Party Walls, &c.; 1 Dallas' Laws, 152. In a foot note it is stated—"This Act had lain dormant and inoperative for some time in consequence of the dissolution of the Corporation of Philadelphia, at the time of the Revolution, the Corporation alone being empowered to appoint Surveyors and Regulators. It was therefore amended and rendered effectual by the Act of April 15, 1782; 2 Dallas, 65. By the latter Act the power of appointing the Surveyors and Regulators was vested in any four of the Justices of the Peace," (with four or more of the Commissioners for paving and cleaning the streets.) "But the Act of March 11, 1789, incorporating the city, (sections 29 and 30,) incidentally restored the appointments to the Corporation." After the passage of the Ordinance of May 9, 1804, none but persons deemed skilful Surveyors or Builders (i. e., House Carpenters) were appointed Surveyors or Regulators.

The Surveyors and Regulators appointed under the Act of April 15, 1782, were Joseph Wetherill, (lumber merchant); James Pearson, (surveyor); Josiah Matlack, (surveyor), and John Connelly, (shop-keeper). See White Directory for 1785. From Surveys, as signed, I find that in 1782, Thomas Nevell, John McCulloch, William Moulder and Gunning Bedford were also Surveyors or Regulators, and that in 1788, Joseph Fox, (house carpenter), was one of the Regulators. See 1 Dallas, 308; Wells, appellant, v. Fox. He died in 1811; when he ceased to be one of the Regulators I do not know, but from 1801 to 1807 he was "Cryer of the Court." See old Directories. I found a Survey dated in 1803, signed by Pearson and Reading Howell.

The Ordinance of Councils of May 9, 1804, entitled an Ordinance to appoint Surveyors of Streets, &c., authorized the Mayor to appoint two qualified persons to survey and regulate the streets, who should make a large and correct plan of the streets and mark the natural water courses and common sewers thereon, and record the same in a book to be kept for that purpose, with proper reference to the draft, their surveys of the streets, &c. There is now (1879) in possession of the Surveyor and Regulator of the Third District a large manuscript volume of surveys, &c., of the streets of the old city of Philadelphia, in the clear, bold handwriting of Reading Howell, on the title page of which it is stated that it was made in accordance with the Ordinance of 1804; at the foot of the title page is the date MDCCCIX. I am, therefore, inclined to believe that Reading Howell was one of the City Surveyors appointed under the Ordinance of 1804, (who the other was I am not even able to guess) for an Ordinance was passed on March 3, 1806, called, "a supplement to the Ordinance entitled an Ordinance to appoint Surveyors," &c., in which it is stated—"Whereas two Surveyors have been appointed as by said Ordinance is directed, one of whom is since deceased, and whereas such progress has been made by the surviving Surveyor in the duties assigned to them by the said Ordinance as renders the appointment of another unnecessary," &c. A further supplement of June 18, 1807, refers to the "Surviving Surveyor." James Pearson was not a City Surveyor from 1800 (when Josiah Matlack was sole City Surveyor), until 1808; the Directories between those periods call him "late City Surveyor;" the Directory of 1808 gives him as "City Surveyor," yet on Oct. 16, 1806, I found a survey signed by James Pearson and William Garrigues; the latter was a carpenter; but Mease, in his Picture of Philadelphia, p. 147, in 1811, gives him as one of the City Surveyors. I find one of Pearson's surveys as late as April 30, 1813. He died in August of that year. The Directory of 1809 calls William Stevenson "City Surveyor;" he was a carpenter, and died in 1817.

An Ordinance of July 13, 1809, to regulate the streets, states that "the said Draft and Book of Reference having been completed," the Surveyors of the City shall regulate the streets, &c., agreeable to said Draft and Book.

The Ordinance of Oct. 1, 1811, directs "the City Regulators or a majority of them," to fix the width of the footways in the streets, &c., and enter them in the Book of Record of the said Regulators.

An Ordinance of August 6, 1814, authorized the Mayor "to appoint three discreet and skilful persons, duly qualified, to be Regulators and Surveyors of the City * * * at least two of whom shall be practical Surveyors, one of whom shall be designated by the Mayor, at the time of the appointment, to be the Recording Surveyor." Under this Ordinance Reading Howell, Samuel Hains and Alphonso C. Ireland, were appointed Surveyors and Regulators. Mr. Howell being designated as the "Recording Surveyor." Before the time of Reading Howell, James Pearson and Thomas Nevell seem to have made the most careful surveys; but paper appears to have been scarce between 1782 and 1813, Pearson's term of service. I found surveys made on the back of the counts of lottery drawings, on backs of election returns, and some on the backs of letters addressed to the "President of the Bank of the United States," and one on the back of a letter from Col. Henry to Capt. Pearson. On one survey was the following memorandum, signed "George Vaux."

—“The Blue Anchor Tavern stood at the N. W. Cor. of Front & Dock & was pulled down about 1810.” J. Edgar Thompson, late President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and a native of Delaware County, ran the lines of some of the streets; a number of his Surveys are on file in the office of the Surveyor of the 3d District, very carefully and handsomely drawn.

By an Ordinance of Council of Dec. 5, 1839, it was ordered that in January of each year thereafter, Councils should in joint meeting elect two persons to be City Surveyors and Regulators, one of whom should be designated at the time of his election, “Principal City Surveyor,” and the other “Assistant City Surveyor and Regulator.” Minutes of Select Council. Previous to the passage of this Ordinance, Samuel Hains, who was elected there under the “Principal City Surveyor,” was the “Recording Surveyor,” and, no doubt, succeeded Reading Howell in that office, after his death, in 1827. Reading Howell made a complete map of Pennsylvania in 1792, under the Act of Congress to encourage Learning and for securing Maps, &c. The first map, that embraced the entire Province of Pennsylvania, was that of William Scull, made in 1770.

The following lists give the names of the Principal City Surveyors and Regulators and Assistants to date.

The Department of Surveys, of the City of Philadelphia, was organized by Ordinance of Councils, under the provisions of the 27th and 50th sections of the Act (of Consolidation) of Feb. 2, 1854. The Ordinance was sent to the Mayor on Oct. 14, 1854, and not having been returned to Councils within fifteen days thereafter, became a law.

On March 27, 1855, Councils in joint session elected Strickland Kneass Chief Engineer and Surveyor, together with twelve District Surveyors and Regulators, viz :

and Surveyor, and President of the Board of Surveyors; but they never performed any other duty, as they were superseded by a supplement to the Act (of Consolidation) of April 21, 1855, directing that the members of the Board of Surveys should be elected by the votes of the twelve Survey Districts into which the city was divided by the supplement—one person to be elected in each district, to serve for five years, "who shall have had five years' experience and skill in his profession." The supplement also directed that the Board should be organized by the election of the Chief Engineer as President.

The said District Surveyors were duly elected on May 1, 1855, and the Board organized by electing Strickland Kneass Chief Engineer and Surveyor. Journal of Select Council, May 7, 1855.

Additional Justices of the Supreme Court,

OF THE PROVINCE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

During the publication of this work, Mr. Simon Gratz, of our Bar, furnished me with the following copy of an ancient and interesting document in his possession, being the oath of office of certain Provincial Judges. I can but regret that I had no knowledge of this important paper before, or of its contents, which gives us another Chief Justice of the Provincial Supreme Court, Samuel Jenings, and another Associate, Peter Baynton, on April 10, 1691. Those of my readers familiar with our history, know that the Minutes of Councils and the Colonial Records are missing between November 21, 1690, and the 26th of April, 1693, and that there are no Minutes of our Courts to be found that were made previous to 1750, that I know of, so no researches of mine could have dis-¹There were no Directories printed for eleven years, namely, none between 1785 and 1791, and none in 1792, 1812, 1815, 1826, 1827, 1834, nor in 1836. The Directory of 1801 was on the plan of a street Directory, but the experiment has never been repeated. Isaac Costa has been the compiler of Gopsill's Directory since its first publication in 1868. A supplement to the Directory for 1814 was printed in 1815. Paxton published a supplement to his Directory for 1819, for the year 1820. The Directories for 1821 and 1822 are merely that of 1820 with a supplement for the respective years.

covered this information. As to the name of Joseph Growden, it is a mooted question among historians whether it should be spelled Growdon, or Growden; it will be observed that Mr. Gratz is in favor of Growdon. The paper referred to is as follows:

“Be it Remembered that Samuel Jenings, Joseph Growdon, Thomas Wynne, Peter Baynton, and Edward Blake, being commissioned Provincial Judges, before they undertook or accepted their commission, they the said Samuel Jenings, Joseph Growdon and Thomas Wynne, being desired, came into Council on the 10th day of the Second month, 1691: and then and there declared their allegiance to the King and Queen, and their lawful obedience to Wm. Penn, Proprietor and Governor of this Province, and to discharge their trust to the best of their understanding and capacity. In testimony whereof they have hereunto sett their hands the day and year aforesaid at the Council Room.

SAML. JENINGS,
JOS. GROWDON,
THO. WYNNE.”

The Mayors

OF PHILADELPHIA.

A Correction in the List.

The City Charter of March 11, 1789, Sect. xii., says: “That it shall and may be lawful for the Aldermen of the said city, or a majority of them, to elect and choose by ballot, every year, or oftener, if a vacancy shall happen by death or resignation, removal from office or from the city, one of their own number, who shall be Mayor for the City for the ensuing year.” Duane’s Ordinances of Philadelphia, 1805; 2 Dallas’ Laws, 654.

The 5th Section authorized the election of Common Councilmen on the second Tuesday in April; they were to meet and organize on the next Friday thereafter, and I suppose they elected in 1789, a Mayor on the day of organization, viz., April 13, 1789, and not in October, as stated on page 95, ante. By the Act of April 4, 1796, the Councils elected the Mayor on the third Tuesday in October, annually. Therefore, the following corrections should be made in the dates of the elections of the Mayors, viz.:

Samuel Powel,	by Council	April 13, 1789
Samuel Miles,	“	April 12, 1790
John Barclay,	“	April 11, 1791
Matthew Clarkson,	“	April 16, 1792

Justices of the Courts,

OF CHESTER COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA.

From 1681 to 1790.

This list of the Justices of Chester County which includes the names of those who were Justices of the Courts, that sat at Chester—now Delaware County—was prepared from a careful examination of the records in the office of Internal Affairs at Harrisburg, and may be considered perfect. I have prefaced the list with the names of the Swedish Magistrates at Tinicum and the Justices of Upland Court, as being of interest in this connection.

The eldest Justice in the Commission present at any sitting of the Court, was styled in the Minutes, the "President," but that does not indicate that such Justice was the "Presiding Justice" of the Court, or the first on the Commission. Those are given here :

¹ Dr. John Wright left Chester County in 1726, and settled in, and became Presiding Justice of Lancaster County in 1729. He died in 1741.

² Died, October, 1750. He was the g. g. grandfather of the author of this work; another g. g. grand-son is Rear Admiral Peirce Crosby, of the United States Navy, now commanding the South Atlantic Squadron.

³ Died, May 30, 1782, aged 84.

²In the Colonial Records, 8 Vol., 573, Lightfoot is given first; perhaps a clerical error, as Worth was the oldest Justice. They were superseded by writs issued Feb. 23, 1761. See Ante, 156, n. 4.

month, and Thomas Mifflin, of Philadelphia, who had been President of the Supreme Executive Council since Nov. 5, 1788, was elected, and on Dec. 21, 1790, inaugurated as Governor in Philadelphia, "with much ceremony." He was Governor until Dec. 17, 1799, a period of nine years, having been twice re-elected. Joseph Ritner, of Washington County, was Governor from Dec. 15, 1835, until the third Tuesday of January, 1839, the beginning of the gubernatorial term having been changed by the amended Constitution of 1838 from the third Tuesday of December to the third Tuesday of January. Governor Shunk resigned on the 9th day of July, 1848, when William Freame Johnston, of Armstrong, who was Speaker of the Senate, by virtue of his office, became Governor until the third Tuesday of Jan'y, 1849. In the meantime, Governor Johnston had been elected at the October election, in 1848, and on the third Tuesday of January, 1849, was inaugurated, and served a full term. Andrew Gregg Curtin, of Centre County, was Governor for two terms, covering the entire period of the Rebellion. Robert Emory Pattison, was elected on Nov. 7, 1882, to serve as Governor for four years from the third Tuesday in January (the 16th), 1883; he is but thirty-two years of age, being our youngest Governor. Mifflin, at his inauguration, was 46; McKean, 65; Snyder, 49; Findlay, 49; Hiester, 68; Shulze, 48; Wolf, 52; Ritner, 55; Porter, 51; Shunk, 57; Johnston, 40; Bigler, 38; Pollock, 45; Packer, 51; Curtin, 44; Geary, 48; Hartranft, 43, and Hoyt, 49 years of age. The Constitution of 1790, provided that a Governor could be elected for three terms successively. The amended Constitution of 1838, limited the time to two terms, and that of 1873, to one term of four years. Philadelphia was the Capitol of the Commonwealth until 1799, when the seat of government was removed to Lancaster, where it continued until 1812, when Harrisburg was made the Capital. Of these eighteen former Governors of the State, only four are now living, namely: Pollock, Curtin, Hartranft and Hoyt.

The Bibliography,

OF THE LAWS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The Bibliography of the Statutes at Large, more commonly called "The Acts of Assembly" of Province and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, naturally begins with the Body of Laws passed at the meeting of the First Legislature of the Province, called by Penn at Upland, i. e., Chester, on Dec. 4, 1682, and which met in the Block House built by the Swedes, and not in the House generally represented, which was the first Meeting House of Friends at Chester, and which was not built until 1693. The statement that the first Assembly met in James Sardeland's mansion, which was built with lime made from oyster shells, and fell down many years since, is not borne out by the language of the note in 1 Logan Papers, 46. Nor were the Great Laws then passed, in number 90—see Votes of the Assembly—those agreed upon in England. Those, called the Printed Laws, were laid before the Assembly, together with other laws, called the Written Laws, and were presented by Penn. The Preamble and one law of the Printed Laws only was passed; then the others, called the Written Laws, were substituted and passed. The laws so passed were enlargements or amendments of the laws prepared in England. William Penn, in a letter dated December 16, 1682, says: "The foreigners were naturalized, and all the laws passed that were agreed upon in England, and more fully worded."

In the Votes of the Assembly it clearly appears that only the Preamble and one chapter of the Printed Laws agreed upon in England, was passed. The Assembly, page 4, then appointed "two members to confer with the Governor touching the 31st Article (which, by the bye, was only a blank) of the printed Constitutions." This they appear to have done, and the conference seems to have resulted in explanations, which caused the Assembly to drop the consideration of the Printed Laws, and the Written Laws were taken up, read and passed, as follows, the Act of Naturalization, the 2nd chapter of the Written Constitutions, and eighty-eight other chapters of the Written Laws, in all ninety, forming the "Great Law or Body of Laws," but which, as it has been handed down to us, consists only of sixty-one laws. And although we naturally ask, how, why, and by whom the ninety laws passed became reduced to sixty-one, we ask in vain; suffice it to say, we have the sixty-one laws recorded as the "Great Laws," passed at Upland, in an engrossed copy of the laws in the handwriting of Patrick Robinson, the then Secretary of the Province, dated December 7, 1682. It is admitted, in the "Historical Notes" to the "Duke of Yorke's Laws," &c., page 482, that the three parchment rolls of the laws in the office of the Master of Rolls, "were not authentic." These consisted of sixty-nine laws, and when compared in 1689 with the "Councils Book of Laws," the Secretary reported "that he had examined and compared the rolls of the first sixty laws with the Councils Book of Laws, he found little agreement, and that, as the Keeper said at the last sitting of Council, were not authentic, so there was no depending on them."

As early as May 23, 1683, it was proposed in the Provincial Council that the laws of the Province should be printed, but after some debate the question was negatived. On November 18, 1701, a resolution was adopted, directing the Master of Rolls to have the laws printed forthwith. This resolution appears to have been carried into effect, because in 1702 James Logan forwarded a copy of the laws "lately printed" to William Penn.

The "Session Laws" were printed from 1712-13 (this copy is wanting), and have been regularly issued ever since. These are now called the "Pamphlet Laws." The Philadelphia Library have the "Session Laws" from 1714 to 1769 inclusive, and those from 1776 to 1801. And all that is wanted to fill up the gap is the publication of the Acts of Assembly from 1700 to 1714. A collation of the "Session Laws" of the Province has been printed in Sabin's Dictionary of Books relating to America.

1. The first collection of the Statute Laws of the Province was made by a Committee of the Assembly, and was printed by Andrew Bradford, appointed by and under the authority of the Legislature. These he "collected in one volume," and printed and sold himself. The first edition was issued in 1714. The title page of this edition is as follows: "The Laws of the Province of Pensilvania, collected in One Volumn, by Order of the Governour and Assembly of said Province. Printed & sold by Andrew Bradford, in Philadelphia, 1714." In the "Advertisement to the Reader," on the back of the title page of this edition, it is stated: "All the laws made in and since the year 1700, and now in force, are here printed at large, and the Titles of those only that are Repealed, Expired or Obsolete; with the times when they were Enacted are set down in their Proper Order, whereby such as may have Recourse thereunto may with the more Certainty apply to the Originals, or the Record where they are Entered."

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania have a fine copy of this edition, which sold at the vendue of Samuel Sitgreaves' Library, in November, 1817, for fifteen cents, for which two hundred dollars was given in 1881.

2. The Second Edition of the Laws was printed in 1728, by Andrew Bradford, "Printer to the Province," and contained a collection of the laws then in force, in "one volumn," edited by David Lloyd. Both those editions are in small folio, and very rare. The first edition is imperfectly paged, which has attracted much attention and many remarks, and careful examiners wonder whether this was done through carelessness or with a purpose, but as the laws appear complete, it was probably only a want of knowledge of imposing by the printers, and it is quite common in the old English law books, for instance, see Rolle's Reports.

3. The volume printed and sold by B. Franklin, Philadelphia, MDCCXLII, 1742, entitled, The Charters of the Province of Pennsylvania and City of Philadelphia, contains all the laws then in force, passed between 1682 and 1738, and the title of those repealed and expired, pp. 562, with an appendix containing a summary of such Acts of Assembly as have been formerly in force within this Province for Regulating of Descents, &c., pp. 24, Index, pp. X. Edited by John Kinsey, Esq.

4. The Charters and Acts of Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania, in two volumes. Vol. I. Containing the Charters of the said Province and the City, Boroughs and Towns thereof. The Titles of all the Laws of said Province since its Establishment down to the year 1700. The Acts of the said Assembly from the year 1700 to 1743, now in Force: and the Royal Confirmations and Repeals to the said Acts, compared with the Public Records (Arms of Penn). Philadelphia, printed by Peter Miller and comp., MDCCLXII. Vol. II. Containing the Acts of Assembly of the said Province, from the year 1744 to 1759, now in Force. A Collection of all the Laws that have been formerly in force within this Province for Regulating of Descents and Transferring the Property of Lands, but are since expired, altered or repealed, from the Establishment of the Province down to this present time. Compared with the Public records. Together with an Index, referring to the matters contained in both volumes. Philadelphia, printed by Peter Miller and comp., MDCCLXII. There are two editions, the above described, in one large folio, and the other in two small volumes, printed 1762, both editions containing the same matter. These two editions are called "Big" Peter Miller and "Little" Peter Miller. The first edition was edited by Lewis Weiss and Charles Brockden, the second by Joseph Galloway.

5. So-called Galloway's Edition, being the Acts of Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania, carefully compared with the originals, and an Appendix, containing such Acts and parts of Acts, relating to Property, as are expired, altered or repealed, together with the Royal, Proprietary, City and Borough Charters, and the original Concessions of the Honorable William Penn to the First Settlers of the Province. Published by Order of Assembly (Arms of Penn), Philadelphia. Printed and sold by Hall and Sellers in Market Street, between Front and Second Streets. MDCCLXXV.

6. The Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, carefully compared with the originals. And an Appendix, containing the laws now in force, passed between the 30th day of September, 1775, and the Revolution. Together with the Declaration of Independence, and the Articles of Confederation of the United States of America. Published by order of the General Assembly. (Arms of the State). Philadelphia. Printed and sold by Francis Bailey in Market street. MDCCLXXXII (1782). Revised, corrected and compared by Thomas McKean, Esq.

7. Laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, from the 14th day of October, 1700, to the 1st of October, 1781. Republished under the authority of the Legislature, by Alexander James Dallas. Vol. I, II, III. Philadelphia. Printed by Hall and Sellers. MDCCXCVII. Vol. IV. Lancaster. Printed by Francis Bailey, Centre Square, 1801. The 3d and 4th volumes are the printed Acts of Assembly from January 8, 1791, to February 26, 1801. Since the session of 1801-2, the Acts of Assembly, or Pamphlet Laws, as they are commonly called, have been issued annually in their present form.

8. Laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. From the 14th of October, 1700, to the 6th day of April, 1802. Republished under the authority of the Legislature, by M. Carey and J. Bioren. Philadelphia. Printed by John Bioren, No. 88 Chestnut street, for Matthew Carey and self. 1803. In 8 volumes. The VII Vol., printed by Bioren in 1806, containing the Laws from December 7, 1802, to April 4, 1805. The VIII. Vol., printed by Bioren in 1808, containing the Laws passed from Dec. 3, 1805, to March 28, 1808.

9. The Laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. From the 14th day of October, 1700, to the 20th day of March, 1810. Republished under the authority of the Legislature, with notes and references, in four volumes. Printed and published by John Bioren, No. 88 Chestnut street, 1810.

The author of the Notes to this work was Charles Smith, LL.D., afterwards, in 1820, appointed President Judge of the District Court of Lancaster. His notes are of great value, and display great ability and research. The note in the second volume upon the Land Laws, is considered as the most learned and exhaustive essay on that subject yet written. The compiler succeeded, however, only in bringing the laws down to the session of 1807-8. A fifth volume was therefore issued, by authority, in 1812 (with a General Index), bringing the Laws down to the end of the session of 1811-12. These five volumes form "Smith's Laws."

In 1822 volume sixth and seventh were issued, edited by Joseph Reed, Esq. (the Recorder of the city). These volumes brought the laws down to the end of the session of 1821-22.

In 1842-4, three more volumes were published by Kay & Brother, the Law Booksellers and Printers, of Philadelphia, also edited by Joseph Reed. The last volume being issued in 1844, and bringing the laws down to the session of 1829-30, and making the full series of Smith & Reed consist of ten volumes.

10. In 3 Binney's Reports, Philadelphia, 1811, Appendix, p. 593, will be found, The Report of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, made in pursuance of an Act of the General Assembly of the said Commonwealth, passed the 7th day of April, 1807, reported to the Senate and House of Representatives on the 19th and 20th of December, 1808.

By the Act above referred to, it was enacted "That the Judges of the Supreme Court are hereby required to examine and report to the next Legislature, which of the English Statutes are in force in this Commonwealth, and which of those statutes, in their opinion, ought to be incorporated into the statute laws of this Commonwealth."

The Report of the Judges covers 32 pages, giving the book and page, year and reign and title of the British Statutes in force in Pennsylvania, and noting those statutes which in their opinion ought to be incorporated into our Statute Laws: See 2 American Law Journal, pp. 51 to 79. In 1817 Roberts' Digest of British Statutes was issued at Pittsburg, being the first edition.

11. A Digest of Select British Statutes, comprising those which according to the Report of the Judges of the Supreme Court made to the Legislature, appear to be in force in Pennsylvania, with some others, with notes and illustrations, by Samuel Roberts, President of the Court of Common Pleas of the 5th Judicial District of Pennsylvania. Second edition, with additional notes and references to English and American decisions, giving construction to those statutes down to the present time, and also the Report made by the Judges of the Supreme Court to the Legislature, by Robert E. Wright, Esq., Counsellor at Law, of Allentown, Pa. Published at Philadelphia, 1847.

12. The State printed in 1879 The Charter to William Penn and the Laws of the Province of Pennsylvania, passed between the years 1682 and 1700, preceded by the Duke of York's Laws, in force from the year 1676 to 1682, with an Appendix, containing the Laws relating to the organization of the Provincial Courts and historical matter. Published under the direction of John Blair Linn, Secretary of the Commonwealth. Compiled and edited by Staughton George, Benjamin M. Nead and Thomas McCamant. Harrisburg: Lane S. Hart, State Printer, 1879.

13. The Digests, properly so called, commence with An Abridgment of the Laws of Pennsylvania, being a complete Digest of all such Acts of Assembly as concern the Commonwealth at large, to which is added an Appendix, containing a variety of Precedents (adapted to the several Acts) for the use of the Justices of the Peace, Sheriffs, Attorneys and Conveyancers. By Collinson Read. Philadelphia, MDCCCI. (1801).

14. An Abridgment of the Laws of Pennsylvania, from 1700 to April 2, 1811, with references to Reports of Judicial Decisions in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. By John Purdon, Jr. Philadelphia, 1811, being the first edition. The second, to the 24th of March, 1818, issued that year, is called "A Digest." The third edition was issued in 1824, and the next (fourth edition) was issued in 1831. By John W. Purdon. It should be by John Purdon, who was a well known member of the Philadelphia Bar, admitted April 28, 1806, and died October 23, 1835.

The fifth edition of Purdon was issued in 1837, the sixth in 1841, and the seventh in 1847, by George M. Stroud, Esq., Associate Judge of the District Court of Philadelphia.

The eighth, ninth and tenth editions, edited by Frederick Charles Brightly, Esq., of the Philadelphia Bar. The eighth in 1853, the ninth in 1862. These editions are called "Brightly's Purdon's Digest." The last, being the tenth edition, was issued in 1873, since which time it has been continued by annual supplements to 1878.

15. A Digest of the Laws of Pennsylvania, from April 7, 1830, to April 15, 1835, with Explanatory Notes, showing the nature and extent of the operation of the Laws contained in this volume, so far as they alter, amend, repeal and supply the pre-existing Laws of this Commonwealth. Together with reference to numerous judicial decisions. Intended, with Purdon's Digest, to form a complete Digest of the Laws of Pennsylvania to the present time. By Benjamin Parke and Ovid F. Johnson. Harrisburg: Patterson & Small, 1836. Volume I. and a supplementary volume (the second) issued in 1837, bringing the Digest down to June 16, 1836, constituting "Parke & Johnson's Digest," in two volumes.

16. The General Laws of Pennsylvania, from the year 1700 to April 22, 1846, chronologically arranged, with notes and references to all the Decisions of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, giving construction of said Laws, and a copious index. Compiled by James Dunlop, of Pittsburg. Philadelphia, 1847. Second edition, 1849, and the third in 1853.

And it may be added, that "The Votes of the Assembly from 1682 to 1776," in five volumes. The "Journals of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, from the 28th day of November, 1776, and ending October 2, 1781, with the Proceedings of the several Committees and Conventions at and before the commencement of the American Revolution." MDCCLXXXII; in one large folio. And the "Minutes of the Assembly," from 1784 to 1790, in four volumes; constitute invaluable books of reference to the lawyer, the historian and the student.

Mr. Brightly, in the preface to the tenth edition of Purdon, 1873, says, that "to obtain a complete body of the Statute Laws of this State, it is only necessary, in connection with PURDON, to possess Roberts' Digest of British Statutes in force in Pennsylvania." Mr. Brightly means a complete copy of laws in force; but the active lawyer and the careful historian both need more than this; they require all the Statutes at Large of the State. There have arisen occasions when lawyers have had to obtain from the State Department copies of public and private Acts, especially charters, at some delay and expense. The Historian, unless he is wealthy, has to do without the public Acts. By a careful examination of the above recited digests, a list of the titles of the unprinted Acts between 1700 and 1714, ninety-five in number, could easily be made, and could the Legislature be prevailed upon to order their publication, they would perfect the Statutes at Large of Pennsylvania in a form accessible to our citizens; and it is to be hoped that, for the credit of the State, this will be speedily done.

52. THE LEGAL INTELLIGENCER. This well-known exponent of the Philadelphia Bar, the oldest Law Journal in the United States, was established by the late Henry E. Wallace, a member of our Bar, and it remains a very creditable monument to his memory. Its first number was given to the public on Dec. 2, 1843. It is not only valuable to the profession in a business point of view, furnishing as it does all the Trial Lists and Motion Lists of the Courts of the City and County of Philadelphia, but is historically invaluable, embracing in its columns the reports of the decisions of our Judiciary, on local matters of great interest and importance to our community, which are thus preserved for future reference, and are the evidences of the labors and learning of our Judges, of whose integrity and ability this community is justly proud. The editors of the Legal Intelligencer since its publication have been, Henry E. Wallace until his death in 1879, J. Hubley Ashton, as Associate from February, 1860, to October, 1864, and Dallas Sanders and Henry C. Titus.

53. OLWINE'S LEGAL REPORTER. On November 25, 1848, Anthony Wayne Olwine was elected the Prothonotary of the Common Pleas; previously, on September 7, 1848, his son, Isaac Wayne Olwine, was admitted to the Bar, and was his father's chief clerk. Mr. Olwine, the Prothonotary, died May 6th, 1850. During his term of office, or immediately thereafter, his son began the issue of a legal newspaper (I have forgotten its title, but I am informed that it was as above given) in opposition to the Intelligencer; but it had a very brief existence. The Directories of the period fail to give the title of Olwine's legal paper. In the Directory of 1848, after his name, it is stated, "Editor of the Philadelphia Bee." This may be the paper he afterwards converted into a legal journal.

54. TUCKETT'S MONTHLY INSURANCE JOURNAL. 2 Volumes. Philadelphia, 1852 to 1860. Contains reports of Insurance cases tried at Philadelphia and elsewhere. The editor was Captain Harvey G. Tuckett, late an officer in the British Army, well known in this country and England on account of his difficulties with his Colonel, Lord Cardigan.

55. THE INSURANCE INTELLIGENCER. On January 31, 1857, Orrin Rogers began the publication of the paper with this title, devoted to all matters connected with the business of Insurance in all its branches, and in the month of May of the same year the writer began to furnish the publication with reports of the decisions of our Courts and others in cases bearing on Insurance and Admiralty questions. On January 4, 1862, the name of the Journal was altered to that of The Philadelphia Intelligencer. And in June, 1871, George C. Helmbold became the editor and proprietor. The paper is still issued, and the writer has furnished for its columns many articles on Historical and Maritime subjects, including "A Historical Sketch of Bethlehem in Pennsylvania, with some account of the Moravian Church," and with the Lists entitled "The Bench and Bar of Philadelphia." These services have been performed voluntarily on the part of the writer, and without compensation, and with the intent to preserve matters connected with that part of the profession of the law to which he has devoted his attention.

59. THE LEGAL GAZETTE. On July 2, 1869, Messrs. King & Baird, printers, issued the first number of a legal weekly, bearing this name. It was discontinued June 1, 1876. It was an excellent paper; but there was no necessity for two newspapers of the same character in this city, either then or now.

62. THE REAL ESTATE REPORTER, devoted to the interests of real estate in all its branches, was established in Philadelphia on October 1, 1875, by James Robert Dever as editor and publisher. It contained lists of all Judgments entered in all the County Courts, lists of all mechanics' liens filed, building permits, notices of sheriffs' sales, &c., and legal notes and decisions of interest to lawyers, conveyancers and all persons interested in real estate matters. This paper was issued weekly only for a short time.

63. THE DAILY COURT RECORD. The first number of this legal Journal was issued in Philadelphia on October 20, 1877, by George Delp, Esq., as editor and publisher. This paper furnishes a complete list of the Judgments entered each day in the four Courts of

The Acts of the Provincial Assembly terminate with the Session of 1775-6. The next Assembly met under the Constitution of 1776, and as it seems to have been the intention of the editor or publisher of the laws passed under the new Constitution as a distinct series, the numbering of the volumes is begun anew.

The Law Association,
OF PHILADELPHIA.

This institution traces its origin back to the beginning of the century, its Law Library being the oldest in the United States. On the 13th of March, 1802, seventy-one members of the Bar of Philadelphia, associated themselves and were incorporated as "The Law Library Company of the City of Philadelphia," the objects being limited to the forming and maintaining of a law library for the use of its members. It was managed by a Board of seven Directors. The first Board, which was named in the Charter, was composed of Joseph B. McKean, William Lewis, Edward Tilghman, William Rawle, Jasper Moylan, Joseph Hopkinson and John B. Wallace, who appointed the latter to be the Secretary and Treasurer.

Some years after this another organization was formed with less restricted objects, styled "The Associated Members of the Bar of Philadelphia." By the terms of its Constitution, membership was confined to practitioners in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. It was not incorporated, and its records have disappeared, but a printed copy of its Constitution and By-Laws, and List of Members, for 1821, has been preserved. Its chief objects seem to have been to bestow especial attention upon the practice of the Bar, and the improvement of the rules of practice adopted by the Courts, to maintain the purity of professional practice, to prevent unfair intrusions upon the ranks of the profession and to afford pecuniary aid and relief to its members when necessary. Its officers consisted of a Chancellor, a Vice-Chancellor, a Treasurer, and a Secretary, and its Standing Committees, of a Committee of Censors and a Finance Committee.

On the 29th of March, 1827, these two organizations were united under the name of "The Law Association of Philadelphia," and the Charter of "The Law Library Company" was amended accordingly, adopting in great part the system of organization and objects of "The Associated Members of the Bar," and providing for the care and continuation of the Library formerly belonging to "The Law Library Company." This amended Charter was signed by fifty-four members of the Bar. The union was perfected at a meeting held April 2, 1827, when an election for officers was held, at which the venerable William Rawle was elected Chancellor (which office he had been holding in "The Associated Members of the Bar,") Horace Binney, Vice-Chancellor, George M. Dallas, Secretary, and Thomas I. Wharton, Treasurer (which office, as also that of Secretary, he had been holding in "The Law Library Company.")

In the year 1880 certain additional amendments to the Charter were granted, in order to adapt the powers and objects of The Law Association to present requirements and to increase its efficiency. As therein stated, its objects are :

1. The general supervision of the conduct of members of the Bar, and of all persons connected officially with the administration of the law or in charge of the public records, and, in cases of any breach of duty on their part, the institution of such proceedings as may be lawful in respect thereto.

2. The improvement of the law and of its administration ; the protection of the Bar and of judicial tribunals, their officers and members, from invasion of their rights ; and the maintenance of their proper influence.

3. The keeping up of a law library.

The censorship of the association over the Bar has had a marked effect. Its law library is in a prosperous condition, and numbers (in 1883) nearly 16,000 volumes, the collection being especially strong in Reports and in the Sessions Laws of the different United States. The Association also possesses a fine collection of painted portraits and busts of worthies of the United States and State Benches, and of the Philadelphia Bar. Its present membership numbers 313 (as of Dec. 4, 1882.) The following is the list of the officers of The Law Association, since its re-organization in 1827 upon its present basis :

The Law Academy,

OF PHILADELPHIA.

“Per Aspera ad Astra.”

Connected with the Bar, and for the advancement of the law students in their profession, there is the “Law Academy of Philadelphia,” said to have been founded in 1783, in a pamphlet of 68 pages, issued by the Academy in 1871, giving all known information respecting the Society, together with lists of the Provosts and other officers, members, and honorary members. The Minutes prior to 1822, and up to 1845, appear to have been carelessly kept. On April 14, 1838, the Association was incorporated in due form, and soon thereafter the members re-elected their first Provost, the venerable Peter S. Du Ponceau. He died in 1844, and the late Thomas Sergeant was elected to fill the vacant position, and held it until his resignation in 1855, when the Hon. George Sharswood, the late Chief Justice of Pennsylvania, formerly one of the Vice-Provosts, was elected Provost. The active members of the Law Academy are permitted by the Law Association to use their books for reference. Whilst I was an active member of the Academy,

I was its Treasurer from 1844 to 1845; during that period Mr. Du Ponceau by his will, left $200 to the Academy, a portion of which was expended in getting his likeness painted. This portrait was presented to the Law Association, and now hangs on the walls of the library rooms. It represents the venerable Provost in his old age, with spectacles. The Law Library has another picture of Mr. Du Ponceau, but he was a much younger man when it was taken. His name is printed on the frame. It was copied from his portrait in possession of the American Philosophical Society. As a part of the History of the Bench and Bar of Philadelphia, I will give here the following sketch of the Law Academy by a well-known member of our Bar.

The Law Academy, of Philadelphia.

BY LAWRENCE LEWIS, JR.

The opportunities for legal education in Pennsylvania were in Colonial times scanty in the extreme. There were, it is true, some practitioners of eminence, in whose offices a student might hope to lay the foundations of a sound legal knowledge by a diligent course of reading. There was, however, an entire absence of variety in the methods of instruction. No courses of lectures were delivered upon legal topics, and no opportunity was afforded to young men to test their abilities before entering upon the arena of active practice. It is easy to understand, that under these circumstances some institution in the nature of a Law Academy was long and sorely needed. The readings and mootings of the London Inns of Court seemed naturally the fittest model upon which to frame such an institution, and it was upon such a basis that in 1784 the first legal debating club was formed. It was composed entirely of law students; Judge Bushrod Washington, John Wilkes Kittera and Peter S. Du Ponceau, with several other afterwards famous names appearing upon its roll. It dissolved within a year or two, as soon as its members were admitted to practice. Another society with like purposes was formed about 1798, the Constitution and By-Laws of which will be found among the Hopkinson papers in the Historical Society's Hall, drawn up (I think) in the handwriting of Francis Hopkinson. This Society seems also to have been shortly dissolved.

In 1811 the project was started anew. The members conceived the happy expedient of electing an older member of the Bar as their President, and succeeded in inducing Mr. Du Ponceau to occupy that position. It became his duty to preside at the meetings of the Society, and to render judgments upon the cases argued before him. We have little knowledge of the operations of this Association, save that it soon languished, and like its predecessors ceased to exist in less than two years after its foundation.

In 1820 the Association was again brought into being, Mr. Du Ponceau being again chosen the President. This Society comprehended only younger members of the profession, both students and those already admitted to the Bar. Warned by the evanescent character of previous associations for similar purposes, a committee was appointed to wait upon the President, and with him, to devise some scheme by which the permanency of the Academy might be assured. After several weeks' deliberation several members of the Bar became interested in the scheme, and it was agreed to form a society composed of Judges, members of the Bar and students-at-law who had already attained the age of twenty-one years, to be known as "The Society for the Promotion of Legal Knowledge and Forensic Eloquence." Its object was to adopt a more scientific and academic system in the method of legal instruction than any at that time employed, and to exercise students in the art of public speaking, so as to unite the talent of the orator with the science of the jurist. Its motto was "Deo Adjuvante." This Society was regularly incorporated on Jan. 12, 1821, and its officers were as follows:

PRESIDENT,	.	.	Hon. William Tilghman, LL.D.
VICE-PRESIDENT,	.	.	William Rawle, Esq.
SECRETARY,	.	.	John K. Kane, Esq.
TREASURER,	.	.	Benjamin Tilghman, Esq.

The Constitution of this Society provided that there should be annexed to it a Law Academy, the Faculty of which should consist of a Provost and Vice-Provost, and other Professors, to be chosen by the parent Society. The academical year was to begin on the first Thursday in May, and the students were to perform such exercises as the Faculty of the Academy should direct. By a schedule the Law Society, then existing under the Presidency of Mr. Du Ponceau, was invited to form itself into an Academy under the regulations already mentioned. The members of that Society were not slow to avail themselves of an opportunity which their own foresight and prudence had provided, and for some time the Academy pursued its work under these auspices. It consisted of 30 regular and 18 honorary members. The Provost and Vice-Provost heard arguments in turn, and gave written opinions in the shape of lectures on the ensuing evening of the session. In process of time courses of lectures were added to the academical course, and the Institution seemed exceedingly prosperous and successful. Mr. Du Ponceau acted as Provost, James Gibson, Esq., as Vice-Provost, while Judge Barnes read two courses of lectures, to the general satisfaction and edification of his hearers.

A slight and unexpected accident, however, dissolved within a short time the parent Society. In May, 1823 or 1824, a meeting had been appointed in the Supreme Court room to elect officers.

Unfortunately, at the hour appointed, the door was locked, the doorkeeper missing, and the Society, after waiting some time, dispersed. There was no provision in the Constitution for such an event. Chief Justice Tilghman gave it as his opinion that the Society could not proceed without a new Charter. Several meetings were held looking to such a result, but the discussion grew prolonged, the meetings less and less numerous, and at last the Society was altogether disbanded. The Academy, deserted in this way, did not, however, lose courage. They drew up a Constitution whereby they assumed to themselves the election of their Faculty and officers. Although the loss of the parent Society for a while seemed to threaten disastrous consequences, they nevertheless continued to grow in importance, in numbers and in usefulness. Several Vice-Provosts were added from time to time, and the original plan fully and admirably carried out. By an Act approved April 14, 1838, (P. L. 402), the Society was incorporated by the name of The Law Academy of Philadelphia, and was vested with all the ordinary corporate powers.

Out of regard to the services of Chief Justice Tilghman, the Academy elected him their patron, a title which he retained until his death, when the Institution did not fail to pay a proper tribute of respect to his memory.

The Academy at present consists of upwards of three hundred members. Its Provost is the Hon. George Sharswood, LL.D., and there are in addition seven Vice-Provosts. Arguments are held once a week, in the old District Court room. Addresses on appropriate legal topics are frequently delivered before the Society, and an annual competition takes place for prizes offered for the best essays on given legal topics.

My name is not on the list of active members of the Law Academy, as it should be; instead thereof, appears the name of James K. Martin, in 1843, the year I was elected. He was at that time a lawyer in full practice, and never was a member of the Academy at any time. I was the Treasurer in 1844 and 1845, and an active member for several years. When I was elected I signed the honorary roll instead of the active, and the mistake was not discovered until the time came for me to sign the honorary roll; see p. 41 of the "Charter, Constitution and By-Laws of the Law Academy of Philadelphia," printed by S. A. Bavis, MDCCCLXVII. On the cover of this pamphlet is a fac simile of "The Seal of the Law Academy of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania," in a circle, within which are the words, "Founded 1783. Per Aspera, Ad Astra. Incorporated 1838." With a List of the Active and Honorary Members attached, and an Index; pp. 44. Similar pamphlets were issued in 1848, 1858 and 1871. On April 28, 1875, a new Constitution was adopted, which was printed, together with the By-laws, the same year, in a pamphlet of 19 pages; a revision of which is now in course of preparation; and since 1857, the Academy has issued an annual "Argument List," containing the questions to be argued during the coming session, and the names of those assigned to debate both sides of the legal questions presented. I give here

Audits were formerly held, and any day from about 3 o'clock P. M. to 6, or later, its rooms and corridors were full of lawyers, their clients and witnesses. The landlord depended on these, and the charge for the use of the rooms, for his living and profits. Shabby carpets covered the floors, a large table stood in the centre of each room, and a dozen chairs scattered around, completed the furniture, and in the winter a coal stove in each room supplied the heat.

An Introduction

TO THE PHILADELPHIA BAR.

It will be observed that in the names as well as in the dates of admissions to the Bar, the list I hereafter give, differs materially, in many cases, from the two lists heretofore given to the public. I refer especially to the list of R. F. Williams, printed in 1855. Messrs. Brown & Shapley, in their book printed in 1868, have copied Williams' list as far as it went, and also his errors. I think Mr. Williams must have had access to the Minute Books of the City and Mayor's Courts. Those records no longer exist, I am told, having been sold as waste paper by a former clerk of one of the Courts. I had careful lists made from the Minute Books of the Common Pleas and District Court, and find that there are numerous admissions in the lists not on the Minutes of the Common Pleas or District Court, and as there are no admissions recorded in the Quarter Sessions, (although I cannot understand why they are not entered in the Minutes,) I can only conclude that the gentlemen named were admitted in the City or Mayor's Courts. All such names have been retained in this list. The Minute Books of the Common Pleas, now in the office of that Court, do not go back of 1789, and the Minutes between Dec. 10, 1791, and June 5, 1799, cannot be found. To the lists named I have added the names of well known former members of the Bar, giving the dates when I first found their names mentioned as in practice, and if I could not find the date of their admission here, I give the date of their admission to the Chester County Bar, as they must have been in practice here at that time. Some of the names referred to will be found in the special lists of "Some old Lawyers of the Province of Pennsylvania," in the List of the "Departed Saints of the Law," and in Sheriff's Deed Book B; and others have been found during my researches on the Bench and Bar of this City and of Chester and Delaware County. I have also had access to a manuscript list of admissions kept by a layman, which he made with great care, following the record, and giving the dates of death when he could obtain them. His list enabled me to solve many doubts, and has been of the greatest use to me in compiling the present one, although I found in it numerous clerical errors in the spelling the names, which exist in the records. The admissions in Deed Book B, are to the Supreme Court of the Province, but I have added them to the Philadelphia Bar, as they would not be admissible in the list of admissions to the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth, which has been kept carefully since 1778. As a practice of two years in the lower Courts was necessary before admission to the Supreme Court, reference must be had to the separate list of admissions entered in Sheriff's Deed Book B, when fixing the date of a first admission; for instance, Edward Burd was admitted in the S. C. April, 1774, perhaps that means he was admitted during April Term, 1774. His first admission in the County Court was about 1771 or 1772, when he was about 21 or 22 years old. Where the admission in the Supreme Court is earlier than any other date, I give that as the date of admission before 1789, that is, where there are no existing records of the lower Courts to direct me. The intention being to give the earliest date of admission known, thus following the suggestion of Mr. Binney, who does not seem to have noticed that Mr. Williams' earlier cases of admission, were in many instances, made from the Supreme Court Minutes. I have searched every known source of information, for old lawyers and for the proper spelling of names; amongst others, the old Directories and the records of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, which includes, of course, their fine biographical library and collection of signatures. The list given has been scanned carefully several times, not only by myself, but a gentleman of the Historical Society noted for his familiarity with the names and history of the former inhabitants of this city and State, and any seeming errors must not be deemed such without careful research on the part of the reader. Horace Binney in his sketch of the "Old Bar of Philadelphia," has said that Mr. Williams' printed list cannot be relied on, as evidence of first admissions to the Bar, and I can justly add, neither can it be relied on for the proper spelling of names, for on his first page, "John Heibley" should be John Hubley,— "Daniel Clym" should be Daniel Clymer, and "Ashton Humphreys" ought to be Assheton H. Objection has been made to my altering the spelling of names, "that being an alteration of the record, which is the best evidence of the proper spelling of the name of the gentleman who was admitted." If the member admitted signed his name, as they do in the United States Courts on admission, then the position would be well taken; but where clerks take names from verbal motions frequently, or from the certificates of Secretaries of Boards of Examination, clerical errors must occur, and the proper name should be given and the error corrected in a list that purports to be authoritative. Sometimes I have found the same name spelled differently in each Court; when I could not ascertain the proper spelling I give one in parenthesis. Some lawyers have altered their names after admission. I give the names they were known by while at the Bar. Where admissions were earlier in one Court than the other, I have taken the earlier date; this has caused a slight difference in dates between my list after 1855 and Brown & Shapley's, who seem to have relied upon the dates of admission to the District Court, and thus made errors in the dates of some admissions and missed a few names of gentlemen admitted to the Common Pleas from the country, who came to the city for attendance on a particular case in that Court; and finally, although my list may be generally relied on as correct, no doubt there will be found errors in it.

¹ The first case on the Record of Upland Court is that of Tho: Spry, Plt. vs. the Estate of Hend: Johnson, dec'd. Spry appears to have practised as an attorney, but the order of Council, at New York, of May 16, 1677, forbidding attorneys to practise, compelled him to resort to the practice of medicine, but leaves Dr. Spry the honor of having been the oldest known attorney in what is now the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, except Capt. John Carr, who is spoken of in Dr. Smith's History of Delaware County, page 97, as "Counsel for the Defendant," in the case of Armgart Prince vs. Andrew Carr and wife, on Oct. 2, 1672; but we know that Capt. Carr was not a professional lawyer. The order of Council and rule of Court above referred to was as follows: "Resolved and Ordered that pleading Attorneys be no Longer allowed to practice in y^e governm^t but for y^e depending causes." No reason is given for this order, and the Court at first seems to have misunderstood it, and on Sept. 11, 1677, made the following reasonable rule: "That no p^rson bee admitted to plead for any other p^rson as an Attorney In Co^rt wthout hee first have his admittance of the Co^rt or have a Warrant of Attorney for his so doing from his Clyant;" but at a Court on Nov. 13, 1677, the order of Council of May 16, 1677, was read a second time.—Upland Record, 58, 82. Previous to this second reading, viz., on June 16th, John Matthews was admitted to practice in the Court, and took an oath "not to exact unallowed fees, not to take fees from both plaintiff and defendant, and that he will not take any apparent unjust cause in hand, but behave as all Attorneys ought to do."—Hazard's Annals, 439.

The List of the Departed Saints,

With the date of their death.

On a leaf of the Continuance Docket (of the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia,) June, 1775, appears the following entry without signature—"Departed Saints of the Law with whom I have been at the Bar." So it is stated in a list of the Philadelphia Bar printed in 1855, edited by R. F. Williams.

Thompson Westcott, in his "History of Philadelphia," says: "It is evident that he (the writer) had been in practice fully forty years." The leaf referred to has been abstracted from the Docket, but Mr. Westcott informed me that he had seen it. The dates opposite some names are Westcott's memoranda of the times of death. Some of the notes are mine, and some Westcott's.

The following is the list and entry referred to above.
